PREFACE.

THE subscriber cannot place this Book before the public without returning his thanks to each and every officer who has voluntarily submitted his record; and particularly to Major General JOHN M. SCHOFIELD, Commanding the Army, who was among the first to comply with the request for Records, and thus gave to the author confidence in the undertaking.

While it has been found necessary to contract the records under certain defined headings, the work contains more information concerning the services of army officers than can be gathered from any other one book ever published.

If some records appear less complete than others the fault must lie with those who furnished them; for all officers (over 2700 in number) were invited to give full and complete accounts of their services.

Dodge for gallant and valuable services in holding the town of Athens, Ala., preventing the capture of the government stores, and frustrating the attempt to destroy the trestle work, by the enemy. Was twice nominated to the U. S. Senate to be a brevet-major, to date from Sep. 25, '72. Service—In the field during the War of the Rebellion, '61–5; served during the period of enlistment (three months) at Cairo, and participated in a few reconnoissances into Kentucky and Missouri; marched from Cairo to Paducah, Kentucky; on provost-guard duty until Sept.; under the command of Brigadier-General Chas. F. Smith, and continued in that position until Nov. 14, '61; at Paducah until Jan., '62, when he participated in the Tennessee campaign; in the movement against Forts Henry and Donelson; conducted a captured Tennessee regiment to Lafayette, Ind.; rejoined the army in time to participate, although on sick report, in the battle of Shiloh, where he was dangerously wounded; rejoined his company from a wounded furlough May 29, '62, and marched with the advance the day before the evacuation of Corinth; after returning from the pursuit of the enemy, served near that place until July; then employed at Burnsville until Oct. in guarding the railroad; moved to the railroad bridge three miles from Corinth, where he served on outpost duty during the battle of the 3d and 4th; stationed at Glendale until Dec., when he rejoined his regiment at Rienzi and served near Corinth until April, '63; regiment was mounted and attached to the second division of the Sixteenth Corps, Army of the Tennessee, and employed in making raids inside of the enemy's lines; actively employed in Alabama and Mississippi until the end of '63. He was conspicuous for a successful defense of Athens, Ala., on the 26th of January, 1864, where the enemy, about eight hundred strong with two guns, under General Roddy, attacked him at 3 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of capturing the government stores at that place and diverting attention from a movement having for its object the destruction of a railway trestle six miles to the rear, on the Nashville road. Having been warned of the contemplated movement, he met the enemy on the west side of the town with about one hundred men deployed as skirmishers, and, although driven back by overwhelming numbers, he successfully delayed their advance and by excellent management so impressed the enemy with the belief that they had unexpectedly encountered a superior force, that they abandoned the enterprise and retreated across the Tennessee River. General Roddy's report of the affair as published in a Southern newspaper, said that after half an hour's hard fighting he succeeded in driving the National troops from their encampment to the east side of the town, when he was compelled by the arrival of reinforcements to retire, having suffered a loss of seventeen men killed and wounded; was actively employed during the spring of '64 upon raids and reconnoissances on the Tennessee River; on the 8th of March led the advance of his regiment across the river and bivouacked in the streets of Decatur, and the next day engaged the enemy at Courtland, and again, on the 10th, at Nancy Creek; then returned to Decatur, where a supply station was established, and was employed until May in making reconnoissances within the enemy's lines; moved in May, '64, from Decatur to Chattanooga, and participated in the Atlanta campaign; employed on foraging expeditions until June, then participated in the closing operations at Kenesaw Mountain; on prison guard duty at Alton from Sept. 10, '64, to Jan., '65; at St. Louis on provost duty until July 14, '65; out of service until Jan., '67; on duty with regiment (39th Inf.) at New Orleans, Ship Island and Fort St. Philip until April 20, '69; on reconstruction duty in Virginia and Mississippi, and on recruiting service at St. Louis, Mo., Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and Madison, Wis., to Dec. 15, '70; at Fort Sidney, Neb., with regiment (5th Cav.) Feb., '71, to Nov., '71; at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., to Dec. 11, '71, and on the 12th accompanied the second detachment of the regiment to Arizona, via San Francisco and Gulf of California; at Camp McDowell, Jan. to June, '72; in the field until Feb., '73; stationed at Camps Grant, McDowell, Apache, San Carlos and Lowell, to May, '75, when he marched with the headquarters of the regiment to Fort Lyon, Col., and thence to Camp Supply, Ind. Ter.; on leave from Oct., '75, to April, '76; participated in the campaigns against the hostile Sioux in the Black Hills of Wyoming, and in the Big Horn and Yellowstone expedition of '76, under Gen. Crook; at Fort McPherson, Neb., until July, '77, when ordered to Chicago to control railroad riots; on Wind River expedition against Nez Perces, Sept. and Oct., '77; at Fort McKinney, Wyo., to '79; on Ute expedition until Nov. 29, '79; at Fort Russell, Fort Sidney, and Omaha, and other places in Dept. of Platte, to '87, and in New Mexico to present time. Staff positions occupied—A. A. A. Gen. of 2d Brigade of the forces under Gen. C. F. Smith, from September to November 14, '61. Battles, skirmishes, etc.—In the capture of Forts Henry and Donelson, Tenn., in the battle of Shiloh (dangerously wounded); action at Cherokee and Lundy's Lane, April 17, '63 (wounded); combats and skirmishes at Town Creek, Florence, Hamburg, Mud Creek, Rocky Run, Athens, Decatur, Morrisville and other affairs of less importance, '63; Kenesaw Mountain and Nickajack Creek, '64; combat at Muchos Canons, and in the affairs on the Santa Maria, Sycamore Creek, Hell Canon, and Pinto Creek, '73; Slim Buttes, Dak., '76. Commands held—Commanded a batt. of cavalry in the Wind River Expedition, '77; command batt. of three companies sent to Omaha, Neb., in '77, to assist in maintaining order during the labor riots in that city.

The Corps in which Gen. Carr was a gallant leader, opened and led the way to the fields of Magnolia Church, Port Gibson and Champion Hills, where he was remarkable for the vigor of his operations, capturing at Edwards' Station a railway train of commissary and ordnance stores. The Corps fought and won the battle of Big Black River, where Gen. Carr's Div. had the extreme advance of the National column, and began and ended the engagement; his Div. also made the first lodgment in the enemy's works at Vicksburg on the 22d of May, where he was conspicuous for coolness under fire and for holding his command so steady that not a regiment faltered on that occasion; he was recommended for promotion as a reward for his skill, valor and distinguished services during this Campaign, which resulted in the defeat of the enemy in five battles, the occupation of Jackson, and the capture of Vicksburg; com. the left wing of the 16th Army Corps at Corinth during the fall of '63, and in Dec. was trans. to Little Rock, where he commanded the 2d Div. of the Army of Ark. until Jan., '64; afterwards assigned to the command of a Cav. Div. in the Dep. of Ark., which he retained until May, '64, participating in the expedition against Camden; assigned to the com. of the Dist. of Little Rock, where he served until Jan., '65; com. the 3d Div. of the 16th Army Corps during the operations against Mobile in '65, and was distinguished for gallantry at the siege of Spanish Fort, the capture of which compelled the evacuation of Mobile; served on the march to Montgomery, Ala., and com. the St. Francis River Dist. until Jan. 15, '66, when he was must. out of Vol. service; after a brief leave of absence was assigned, in Mar., '66, to the command of a detachment of the Regt. and the post of Raleigh, N. C.; continued on this duty until April, '67, when he was placed on waiting orders; ordered to St. Louis for duty with seven companies of the 5th Cav., which were moving from stations in the Southern States to Kan., for the purpose of participating in a campaign against the hostile Sioux and Cheyennes; joined early in Oct. and served in the field through the winter until July 30, '69.; during this period he com'd. an expedition on the Western frontier of Kan. in the fall of '68; com'd. Fort Lyon and an expedition of twelve companies to the Canadian River during the winter of '68–69; when marching across the country in May, '69, from Sheridan, Kan., to Fort McPherson, Neb., fought and defeated a large force of Cheyennes on Beaver Creek, Kan.; he vigorously pursued the enemy for three days, and again inflicted a severe loss upon them at Spring Creek, Neb.; com'd the expedition to the Republican River during June and July, '69, and by a series of brilliant operations against the savages opened that country to settlement; com'd in the affair at Rock Creek, Col., and in the brilliant action at Summit Springs, Col., on the 11th of July, where he signally defeated the band of Dog Soldiers under the celebrated Cheyenne chief, Tall Bull, thus securing a lasting peace to the long distracted frontiers of Kan., Neb. and Col. His conspicuous services during these operations were esteemed of so much value and importance to the country that he received the congratulations of the Dep. Com., Brig. Gen. Augur, of Lieut.-Gen. Sheridan, and of Gen. Sherman, and the thanks, by joint resolutions, of the Legislatures of Neb. and Col; stationed at Fort McPherson, Neb., from the fall of '69 to the 27th of Nov., '71, when he succeeded to the command of the Regt. and conducted the h'd'q'rs and six Companies to the Dep. of Ariz.; arrived in Jan., '72, at Camp McDowell; had station there until Feb., '73, and was employed part of the time on Gen. Court-Mar. duty at Prescott and San Francisco; changed station with the h'd'q'rs of the Regt. to Camp Lowell in Feb., '73, where he served in charge of the construction of that post until April, '74, when he was sent to San Diego and Los Angeles as President of a Board of Officers which was convened to purchase Cav. horses; upon the completion of this duty he availed himself of a sick leave of absence and visited Europe; resumed com. of the Regt. at Fort Hays, Kan., in June, '75, and except a brief tour of field service in Nov., remained at that station until June, '76; then trans., with the h'd'q'rs and eight companies, to Cheyenne, Wyo., for the purpose of participating in the Sioux Campaign of that year; moved from Cheyenne to Fort Laramie and operated in the country north and east of that place, and com'd the Dist. of the Black Hills until relieved by Col. Merritt; served with the Regt. as second in com. until the organization of the Big Horn and Yellowstone expedition at Goose Creek, Mont., on the 4th of Aug., when he again succeeded to the command, which he retained until the expedition was disbanded on the 24th of Oct., at Ft. Robinson, Neb.; at Fort McPherson, Neb., from Nov. 7 to the summer of '79; detached, in July, '77, to Chicago, where he com'd a Battalion of Cav. during the railway riots; while East, on a brief leave of absence, was a member of a Retiring Board convened in New York City, where he served until the fall of '79, when he assumed command of his Regt. at Fort Lowell, Ariz., on Oct. 1, '79; assigned to the command of field operations in Southeastern Ariz., in which he was employed during the year '80, against the hostile Apaches of Southeastern Ariz., Western New Mexico and Old Mexico; since then stationed at Forts Apache and Lowell, and was conspicuously presented to the favorable attention of the country by a gallant and successful defense against the attempted massacre of his command by the White Mountain Apaches at Cibicu Creek, in Aug. '81, because of the arrest and subsequent killing of the medicine-man and prophet, Nockaydetklinne, which paralyzed the hostile White Mountain Indians; marched his Regt. from Ariz. to New Mexico in June, '84, and stationed at Fort Bayard till Oct., when appointed Superintendent of Mounted Recruiting service at St. Louis, Mo., where he served till autumn of '86, when he returned to the command of his Regt. at Fort Bayard, N. M.; marched from that post to Fort Wingate, N. M., in June, '88; assigned to command of the Dist. of N. M., which he assumed Nov. 26, '88; made several trips to the Navajoe, Zuni and Accomac Reservations; com'd field operations from Fort Wingate in Sep. and Oct., '89, marching into the Zuni, Navajoe and Moqui countries, and in Nov. and Dec. inspected the Troops of his Regt. stationed at Forts Union and Stanton, N. M. He has, up to date, held twenty-eight commands larger than those of his rank at the time; has lived eight years and nine months without a roof, partly in tents and partly en bivouac; been in thirty-seven fights, fifteen Indian, of which thirteen were since the War of the Rebellion; been hit four times, his sabre hit twice and horses hit twice. Battles, skirmishes, etc.—In action of Dug Springs and the battle of Wilson's Creek, Mo., Aug. 10, '61; battle of Pea Ridge, Ark., Mar. 7, '62; battles of Magnolia Church and Port Gibson (leading), capture of Jackson, action at Edward's Station (commanding), battle of Champion Hill, capture of the enemy's works at Big Black River Bridge, the assaults upon Vicksburg, 18th (leading) and 22d of May, and the siege and capture of Vicksburg, May 23 to July 4, '63; actions at the crossing of Little Red River, at Poison Spring (commanding), at Prairie D'Ane, and crossing of the Saline River at Jenkins' Ferry, '64; action at Clarendon, Ark., June 20, '64; siege and capture of Spanish Fort, near Mobile, '65; assault on Fort Blakely, Mar. 11, '65; combats against hostile Indians on Beaver and Shuter Creeks, and on the north branch of Solomon River, Kan., Oct. 18, 25 and 26, '68; actions of Beaver Creek, Kan., and Spring Creek, Neb., May, '69; Summit Springs, Colorado, July 11, '69; action at Slim Buttes, Dakota, September, '76; affair with White Mountain Apaches, at Cibicu Creek, Arizona, August, '81.

March 13, '65, for gallant and meritorious services in the battles before Petersburg, Va. Honorably mentioned—In report of Col. Frederick Townsend, Com'g 109th N. Y., with regard to the battle of Big Bethel, Va., he said of him: "He was at Bethel and I do not hesitate to say there was no man or officer more distinguished on that field than he." Service—In the field with Army of the Potomac during the War of the Rebellion; had separate command in '63–4 at Falls' Church, Va., which was kept in active service watching the predatory movements of Mosby and other guerrillas; in May, '64, his regiment joined the 9th Corps, and was assigned to the 1st Brigade, 3d Division; sick in hospital at Washington, D. C., with gastric fever, for several weeks after the action at Gaines' Farm, Va.; rejoined command in front of Petersburg, Va., July, '64; and on July 30, while Com'g a Provisional Brigade of three Regiments at the battle of "Crater," he lost his right leg and received other severe wounds. As soon as he recovered sufficiently to walk with crutches the Secretary of War assigned him to duty as President of a Court Martial and Military Commission at Washington, D. C., where he served with his Brevet Rank of Major General until mustered out June 4, '65. In '67, by reason of the severity of his wounds, he applied for a Captaincy in the Army, to which he was promptly appointed; and in May, '70 he was retired as a Colonel of Infantry, being the lineal rank he held when wounded. Staff positions occupied—Adjutant 109th N. Y. Vol. Inf. March, '62. Battles, skirmishes etc.—In the battle of Big Bethel, Va., March, '62; Wilderness, and succeeding engagements; Spottsylvania, North Anna, Gaines' Farm, and other engagements from the Rappahannock to James River, and in the battle of the "Crater," in front of Petersburg, Va., '64. (wounded). Commands held—After the wounding of Col. Tracy, May 6, '64, he commanded his regiment in all engagements up to Gaines' Farm. Commanded a Provisional Brigade at the battle of the "Crater." History—When the Rebellion was inaugurated he was a member of law firm of Tracy and Catlin at Owego, N. Y., the senior member being the present Secretary of the Navy, Honorable Benjamin F. Tracy. Catlin was also Mayor of Owego at that time, having been elected in November, '60, without opposition. On the 17th of April, '61, the date of Lincoln's first proclamation for volunteers, he officially approved a call for a meeting to raise a company of volunteers. On that evening he enrolled himself, with others, as an enlisted man, and before the meeting adjourned the minimum number of men for a company was enrolled, with himself unanimously elected as Captain. It is claimed to have been one of the first, if not the very first, company of actual volunteers enlisted in this State. The Company was attached to the 3d New York Volunteers. He served with it at Big Bethel, Virginia. In March, '62, he resigned for the purpose of helping to raise a new regiment, and when General B. F. Tracy was assigned to the 24th Senatorial or Regimental District by Governor E. D. Morgan, Catlin was first made Adjutant of the Post, then Lieut. Colonel of the 109th N. Y. Vols. After the war, in '65, he was nominated for District Attorney of Tioga Co., N. Y., and received the largest majority ever given a candidate in that county. In '70 he was appointed Ass't U. S. District Attorney, which position he held for two years, and then went into partnership with Gen. Tracy, the present Secretary of the Navy, in the practice of the law. In '74 he was nominated for Dis. Atty. in Kings Co., N. Y., against the late Gen. Philip S. Crooke, but subsequently retired in favor of the latter, who was defeated. In '77 he was again, against his own protest, unanimously nominated by acclamation, and, overcoming an opposing majority of about 14,000, he was elected by about 3,000 majority. He was unanimously re-nominated by acclamation in '80, and, overcoming a normal opposing majority of 9600, he was elected by about 11,000. In '83 he had the nomination again in his hands with practical unanimity, but retired in obedience to the sentiment against the third term. In '85 he was nominated by the County Convention, by acclamation, for Surrogate, and after declining on the spot, he was in a short time again put in nomination with immense enthusiasm, but he again declined peremptorily. Two days after he declined the nomination for Surrogate, he was unanimously nominated for Mayor, but was defeated in consequence of the nomination of an independent candidate, who received about 13,000 votes. Gen. Catlin received 37,000 votes. In addition to the foregoing statement it is proper to say, that in '86 it was universally conceded he could have had the nomination for District Attorney if he had desired it, but he refused to allow his name to go before the Convention. Early in '87 Gen. Catlin withdrew from active politics, devoting himself earnestly to the vigorous prosecution of his large law practice, though he was diverted from it long enough in the fall of '88, to enter heartily into the Presidential contest, in the interest of Grover Cleveland, and again in the fall of '89, in the interest of Alfred C. Chapin for Mayor of Brooklyn. He has steadily and firmly refused to allow his name to be presented for official honors, preferring the honors and emoluments of private life to those of public position.

E. C. Potter, who commanded, mentioned him, in his report of the affair at Honey Hill, S. C., as follows: "I entertain a high opinion of Col. Chipman's abilities and conduct. In the engagement of Dec. 9th he commanded the supports, consisting of the 144th N. Y., 56th N. Y., 102d U. S. C. T., and the battalion of sailor Infantry. Throughout the day he displayed great coolness and courage, and excellent judgment." Was with the first troops that entered Charleston, S. C. Bvt. Maj.-Gen. John P. Hatch speaks of his services as follows, in an endorsement sent to the War Department: "Colonel Chipman is a man of fine abilities, a first-class officer and a thorough gentleman. He has gained the esteem of all with whom he has been thrown, by the exercise of the above qualities; by his gallant conduct and good judgment he rendered important services in the campaign closing with the occupation of Charleston. He merits, and I hope will obtain, a recognition of his services by his government." Honorably mentioned in the "Records of the Rebellion" on the battle of Chancellorsville, Vol. XXV. Part I., p. 526; and on Gettysburg Series I., Vol. XXVII. Part I., p. 635. Service—Left Detroit, Mich., with 2d Mich. Inf. June 6, '61, for Washington, D.C.; resigned from the volunteer service and entered the regular army June 24, '61; joined Hd. Qrs. 11th Inf. at Fort Independence, Mass., and remained there until Oct. 14, assisting in organizing the regiment; mustered into the U. S. service the 18th and 20th Regiments Masschusetts Volunteers; was assigned to Co. "D," 1st Batt., 11th Inf.; Oct. 14, left with company as a part of a batt. of the 11th Inf. for Perryville, Md.; was engaged doing guard duty here until March, '62; went to Washington, D. C., with the batt. to join the Army of the Potomac; served continually with this army till April, '64; went through the Peninsular campaign under Gen. McClellan; soon after the battle of Antietam was appointed acting field officer of the 1st Batt., 11th Inf.; was with Maj. C. S. Lovel's command on a reconnoissance from the Potomac River to Leetown, Va.; the troops fording the river had continuous sharp skirmishing for two days, until the command recrossed the Potomac River, near Shepherdstown, Va.; was engaged on the skirmish line the most of the time; March 21, '63, was appointed by Maj.-Gen. Meade acting assistant inspector-general of the 2d Div., 5th Corps (Sykes' division of regulars); from the close of the Mine Run campaign was engaged as acting assistant inspector-general until April 1, '64, when, having been appointed colonel of the 102d Regiment U. S. Colored Troops, left the Army of the Potomac and went with regiment to Hilton Head, S. C.; was engaged doing picket duty, and for a time was in command of the defenses of Hilton Head; on the 30th of August, '64, went with regiment to Jacksonville, Fla., and was engaged in destroying the railroad leading from Jacksonville to Tallahassee, Fla.; built an earth-work at Magnolia, on the St. John's River; after the completion of this work went to Beaufort, S. C., with regiment, where he remained until Nov. 30, '64, in command of an extended picket line, taking in three of the Sea Islands. At the above date started with five companies of regiment to join an expedition, under command of Gen. John P. Hatch, at Boyd's Landing, S. C., for the purpose of capturing the Charleston and Savannah Railroad; the result was a severe battle at Honey Hill, S. C.; commanded a brigade a part of the time during this battle; two days after this commanded a reconnoissance towards the railroad, about five miles from where the battle was fought, and had a sharp skirmish with the enemy; on the 9th of Dec., '64, another attempt was made to capture the railroad, about thirty miles distant from Honey Hill, towards Charleston; in this affair, which was quite severe, he commanded a brigade composed of three regiments and a battalion of sailors and marines from the Navy; was with the first troops that entered Charleston, S. C. On April 1, '65, left Charleston with two wagon loads of ammunition and two hundred and fifty men to join an expedition at Nelson's Ferry, on the Santee River, a command from Georgetown, S. C., under Gen. Potter; on reaching the ferry learned that he had gone on towards Camden, some days before, so crossed the river and followed his command for five days, when he joined Gen. Potter, fought his way through to him; one officer and nine men were wounded and one man killed while making this march; the day after joining Gen. Potter took his own regiment and five companies of another regiment to drive the enemy from a strong earth-work, immediately in their front and across the road of the line of march; turned the enemy's flank and drove him out after a severe fight of thirty minutes; on the 17th of April, '65, while on the march back to Georgetown, the enemy sent in a flag of truce with the intelligence of Gen. Lee's and Johnston's surrender, and of the assassination of President Lincoln; have been told that this command did the last fighting of the war; served in South Carolina, commanding a district part of the time, extending from Columbia to the north line of the State; was in command of the regiment at the time; after being mustered out of the volunteer service reported at Fort Independence, Boston Harbor, and was assigned to Co. Thomas' staff, January 1, '64, to September 19, '64. Battles, skirmishes, etc.—In battle of Chickamauga, Sept. 19, '63. History—Captain Clem is probably the youngest soldier on record, and began active service when about eleven years of age. Shortly after the death of his mother, he offered his services to the 3d Ohio Regiment as drummer, but was rejected, being then not ten years of age. He afterwards offered himself to the 22d Michigan Regiment, but was again rejected. He determined, however, to cast his fortunes with the 22d Michigan, and April, 1862, found him beating the "long-roll" before Shiloh, where his bravery was so great that he was mustered in, and was known as "Johnny Shiloh." But it was on the 23d of September, 1863, at the battle of Chickamauga, that he won the name which will live long after he has passed away. Here, though just past his twelfth year, he had laid aside the drum for the musket, and, after acting for a while as a marker, with a musket, the barrel of which had been cut down expressly for his use, he took his place in the ranks. As the day closed, and the army retired to Chattanooga, his brigade was ordered to surrender by the enemy, and "Little Johnny" himself was covered by the sword of a Confederate Colonel, but quickly bringing his gun into position he shot the Confederate Colonel. His regiment was then fired into, and, falling as if shot, the juvenile soldier laid close until dark, when he went to Chattanooga and joined his command. For his bravery he was made a Sergeant by General Rosecrans, and attached to the headquarters of the army at Cumberland, and was presented with a silver medal by Miss Kate Chase, a daughter of the Chief Justice. He was afterward captured and held prisoner for sixty-three days, and after his release was made Orderly Sergeant by General Thomas, who had succeeded General Rosecrans, and was attached to his staff. At the close of the war he went to school and graduated at the Newark High School. In 1871 General Grant, in recognition of his merits, appointed him Second Lieutenant.

Feb. 20, '47, for meritorious conduct in California; Brevet Major General U. S. A. March 13, '65, for gallant and meritorious services during the war. Service—At Jefferson Bks., Mo., '27–9; conducted recruits in Mackinac boats to Fort Snelling in fall of '28, returning in Nov., '29; transferred in a selected battalion to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., which marched in May as first escort of Santa Fé traders; in camp on National boundary—the Arkansas River—four months, awaiting return of caravans; caravan returned in October, escorted by Mexicans, commanded by the Inspector General of the Mexican army—camped together, with interchange of civilities, a review and two dinners; marched back to Fort Leavenworth; served there until '32; volunteered to accompany two cos. to regimental headquarters in the field, in Illinois; returned by steamer to Rock Island and there the regulars suffered great loss from Asiatic cholera; on recruiting service '33; rejoined at Jefferson Bks. in Nov.; marched to Fort Gibson in Dec.; in camp there to June, '34, thermometer ranging from 10° to 105°, then marched several hundred miles southwest and returned, losing, by fevers, one-fourth of all officers and enlisted men; the command, with Brevet Brig. Gen. Leavenworth included, returned very sick to Jefferson Bks.; on recruiting service '35; on application ordered to his troop, at Fort Jesup, La.; marched to Nacogdoches, Texas; there the squadrons hutted themselves, but in June, '36, marched back to Fort Gibson, I. T.; there until '39; at Carlisle Bks. and temporary camp of three arms of the service Trenton, N. J.; returned in '40 to camp on Cherokee boundary, called Fort Wayne, '39; marched to Fort Leavenworth and then under Col. Kearny to Fort Gibson, on occasion of an alarm caused by large bodies of emigrant Creek Indians and their negro slaves becoming unmanageable; marched back to Fort Leavenworth; '41–2 on several excursions to Indian tribes; '43 escorting Mexican caravan; returned to Fort Leavenworth; marched again in August to protect another caravan to boundary and returned to Fort Leavenworth, arriving there in Nov.; '45 with the regiment—3 squadrons—in an expedition commanded by Col. S. W. Kearny—Dep. Commander—to South Pass of the Rocky Mountains, thence returning by Bent's Fort, Ark. River, to Fort Leavenworth, 2100 miles in 99 days, horses living entirely on grass; '46 transferred with his troop in May to reoccupy Fort Crawford, Wis.; returned in June to Fort Leavenworth, to follow the "Army of the West," then marching to New Mexico, and found it in camp near Bent's Fort Aug. 1; sent forward next day on a mission to Santa Fé, escorted by a sergeant and 12 troopers; arrived Aug. 12; finding that ancient city overflowing with volunteers, had two interviews with Genl. Amigo [Governor], and took leave at sunrise Aug. 13; met the Army at Tecolote, and witnessed there Gen. Kearny's meeting with Alcalde and people, requiring them to take an oath of allegiance to the United States. Army camped Aug. 17 at Pecos River, at the ruins of an ancient (Aztec) temple; and that day Amigo retreated from a very strong position—three miles on—at a stream, which he had strengthened and occupied with double our force, at the least, and six or eight pieces of cannon (but I had discovered a way to turn the position). The army arrived before Santa Fé, about sundown, Aug. 18, without rations, and after a march of 28 miles! The city was summoned before the arrival of our single battery, and of our only two companies of infantry. The General slept in the (adobe) palace, surrounded or occupied by 100 men commanded by Captain Cooke, the army in camp on the hill, by which it was approached. Having established a civil government, Genl. Kearny, having Doniphan's regiment—and a very large regiment under Col. Price approaching—marched, Sept. 26th, with three hundred Dragoons, on mules, for California. Oct. 4th he appointed Capt. Cooke a Lt. Colonel of an infantry battalion of volunteers, then expected at Santa Fé. He was ordered to return there, and prepare the battalion as soon as possible, and march, with a wagon train, if possible, to California. He found the army chest empty, and our army officials without credit—the new citizens had enough of their OLD patriotism left to refuse to sell their mules. He marched, Oct. 19, '46, with a small wagon train, containing thirty days' rations of pork and sixty of flour, for, in the main, a wilderness march without a road—which proved to require one hundred and three days; numbers of mules were abandoned the first day. 1847, Jan. 29th, arrived at San Diego (for two weeks previously, and for six more weeks, the battalion subsisted, exclusively, on beef). Feb. 1st marched for the old mission, San Luis Rey, and there quartered the battalion. March 14th Major Turner, A. A. Genl., came; he had communicated to Col. Fremont, at Los Angeles, a proclamation of Genl. Kearny's at Monterey, assuming the Governorship (in obedience to the President); also orders to Col. F. to disband his "battalion," and assigning Lt. Col. Cooke to the command of the "southern half of California." Col. Cooke immediately sent a courier to Col. F., and ascertained that he declined to obey the order to disband the battalion. Whereupon he broke up quarters at San Luis Rey, and marched for Los Angeles; arrived and camped there March 23d, finding that Lt. Col. Fremont had left for Monterey the previous day. May 31st, having resigned his volunteer commission, he left Monterey for Fort Leavenworth with Genl. Kearny and a party of 40 officers and attendants; all carried government rifles, and reached there in 83 days, riding, on an average, 33 miles every day; their provisions were exhausted several days before meeting the advance of emigration, on Snake River, Oregon. 1847, proceeded immediately to Vera Cruz; on arrival found orders for New York City. Detained in attendance on Gen. C. M. on Lt. Col. Fremont all winter. 1848, proceeded, in March, to City of Mexico. In command there of 2d Drags. until its evacuation. 1848–52, in command of Carlisle Bks., Pa., superintendent Cavy. Recg. Serv.; ordered to Texas in October. 1853, in comd. of Fort Mason, Texas (and of 2d Dragoons); marched in a campaign against Lipan Indians; defeated and drove them across the Rio Grande, and ordered to New Mexico. 1853–54, in command of Fort Union, N. Mexico; operations against Jicarilla Apaches. Mar. 31st received despatch from Comdr. of Fort Burgwin, near Taos, on ridge of Rocky Mountains; his troop had been defeated with much loss of men and horses; had retreated to the Fort, which was still beleaguered by savages; marched in an hour with squad "Cav." and one Comp. of 3d Infantry; and with Cav. reached Ft. Burgwin that evening, 52 miles, and made ascent of mountain, and by next evening, when the Inf. arrived, had raised a company of Pueblo Indian trackers and guides—commanded by Lt. Gov. of Ter'y—and marched next morning, with a troop 2d Drags. added, all equipped and provisioned. Tracked the enemy across the Rio Grande; found they had made a path through snow 3 to 4 feet deep, by leading the captured Dragn. horses in single file, passable for baggage and families; trail followed among the mountains 150 miles, when their camp, at Aguas Calientes, was surprised, captured and destroyed; the Indians were routed, several killed; pursuit continued several days, until they scattered. Soon after discovered they had doubled, and found the reunited trail, followed it until, by a fall of snow, it was lost. Dept. instructions, afterwards received, were all anticipated, even the responsibility of raising irregulars. Gen. Garland, in his Dept. report, "All has been done which was in the power of troops to do. I approve most cordially of the manner in which Lt. Col. Cooke has conducted his campaign. The Jicarilla Apaches have been most thoroughly humbled, and sue for peace." Gen. O. No. 9, '54, Secy. of War, announcing reports of engagements in N. Mexico and Texas: "In these encounters Lt. Col. Cooke and . . . merit special praise. The gallantry and devotion exhibited by the troops in every instance of combat, and in the most arduous pursuit of the enemy . . . receive the marked approbation of the President and of this Department." Fall of '54 marched to Fort Leavenworth and assumed command. 1855, marched to Platte River, comdg. 2d Dragoons; patrolled it several months; joined there by Gen. Harney, on "Sioux Expedition;" comdg. Cavalry and two mounted comps. of Arty. and Infty., crossed the Platte by night, and by circuitous march of many miles reached Blue Water, above the farthest Indian camp. At signal, after sunrise, of Gen. H.'s approach with Infty. Bat'n—the Indians having embodied—charged, routed and pursued them 8 miles, killing, as reported by Cavy. commanders, 73; their loss, 12 killed and wounded. Marched to Fort Laramie; return march to Fort Riley, and assigned to its command in Nov.,

1856–7, with Hd. Qrs. at Riley, and after at Ft. Leav'th; was generally in command of troops in the field, quelling the disorders and combats of the great political and armed contest in Kansas. Report of Gen. Persifer Smith, Dept. Comdr., Sep. 11, '56, Extract: "I approve therefore highly of Col. Cooke's refusal to send a command to Topeka; . . . you will see by the enclosed papers that a party from Lawrence (comd. by Gen. Jas. Lane) . . . threatened to attack Lecompton, and were prevented by Lt. Col. Cooke. The embarrassments arising from the combinations of different parties can hardly be estimated away from here." Gen. S.'s Dept. Report, Nov. 11, '56, extract: "The troops in the field have been under the immediate command of Lt. Col. Philip St. Geo. Cooke, 2d Drags. The sound judgment he has displayed, and his promptness, energy and good management have had a large share in producing the happy state of affairs at present existing; for there were moments when the want of either of these qualities might have led to the most fatal disasters." Endorsement of Secy. of War, Nov. 8: "The discrimination and good judgment displayed by Lt. Colonel Cooke receives unqualified commendation; . . . the course which Lt. Col. Cooke pursued manifests that energy and discrimination which, under the circumstances, could alone have prevented a secret armed invasion, and further disturbances to the peace and good order of Kansas." 1857, in camp at Lawrence, Ks. (in July marched 98 miles in 28 hours on application of comdr. of Fort Riley, as threatened, with its women and children, and only remnant of garrison, by bodies of hostiles; he had been deceived). Recalled to Ft. Leav'th in Sept. Marched Sept. 22d in comd. of 3 squadrons 2d Drag., to follow the "Mormon Expedition;" arrived at Ft. Bridger Nov. 19th (the cold in the mountains intense, little or no fuel—corn all consumed on arrival at South Pass; about one-fourth of horses and mules starved and frozen to death); on arrival ordered, with regt. dismounted, to pass winter in mountain valleys, where grass—good there in winter—could be found under shallow snow, guarding above 7000 animals at first; danger of stampede by Mormons, who had burned two supply trains; in consequence the army subsisted for seven months on moribund beef, without salt, 12 ozs. pork a week and half rations of flour. 1858, June 11th, marched, in the advance of the army, in a three hours' snow, for Salt Lake City (horses had gotten from N. Mexico); it was found depopulated. On leave of absence, and in Dec., at Washington, ordered to write a new system of Cavy. Tactics. 1859, in June went to Italy to witness the campaign against Austria; returned to Washington in Oct., 1860; ordered to the comd. of Mil. Dept. of Utah (a march or ride, from Fort Leav'th, of several months!), 1861, broke up Dept. of Utah and marched, in July, for Wash.; arrived Oct. 19th; employed several weeks in getting out the cavalry tactics, which had been officially approved. Assigned to comd. of "Cavy. Reserve,"—all regular Cavy. at Wash. 1862, in comd. of a Cavy. Division Army Potomac; in Peninsular campaign, present Apr. 5th to May 4th, at the "siege" of earth breastwork and ditch, extending from Yorktown across Peninsula; in comd. of advance guard at the combat near Williamsburg, May 4th. June 27th, at the battle of Gaines' Mill, Gen. Cooke, with a weak brigade of his Cavalry Division present, and three batteries of artillery were posted in reserve, in rear of the left of the army; the latter with large intervals and about a fourth of a mile in advance of the cavalry. After this neither Cavy. nor Arty. Comdr. received any order the whole day, as is believed, save one, to the left, Robertson's battery, given by Gen. C. About 6 P.M. nearly the whole of the army in sight seemed suddenly to disappear, in confusion, to the rear, and the three batteries opened a furious fire; there was no hope left, save in this feeble force in reserve (happily unconscious of an impending fire in their rear, literal as well as metaphorical). Then Gen. C. instantly advanced, to support the batteries; sending, while in motion, the regt. of Lancers to the battery on the left, and formed two lines in rear of the interval of the right batteries. Then he gave orders, both to the comdr. of 5th Cavy., front line, and to Col. Blake, comdr. of the brigade, to support their fire as long as possible, and to charge, if necessary, to bring them off; he then rode to Robertson's battery, which, unsupported and isolated, had begun to limber to the rear, and saw the fire renewed. The fire of the batteries "with spherical case and shell" was reported very effective. But very soon the charge was made with all the success expected; for, a destructive fire having been prolonged, the batteries were brought off safe, except part of one, which had been wholly disabled by the enemy's fire. Gen. C., with the Lancers and the battery, then saw that they were the very last upon the field; the battery was then limbered up and drove off, at a walk, with Rush's Lancers in their rear; passing round a shoulder of the hill, Blake was found there, and two lines were again formed facing the enemy, then appearing very near, on the brow of the hill; then a battery of ours, about a half-mile to our rear, opened a fire of shrapnel, to which the cavalry on the slope were more exposed than were the enemy; a message was sent to stop the fire. The enemy withdrew from our front and the battle was closed. The Confederates emerging in disorder from the wooded ravines, expecting nothing but pursuit of a routed army, were thus met by a heavy artillery fire, supported by lines of cavalry and a bold charge. In their mind a line of fresh troops were before them, and daylight failing, it was but natural that they should hesitate and halt to prepare for a new emergency. They did so, and that night the cavalry bivouacked at the edge of the battle-field, between any other part of our army and the enemy they had checked. And so that wing of the army was probably saved from further disaster and narrowly escaped a new Roman Lake Thrasemine in the flooded river and swamps close at its rear. It so remained until after midnight, and furnished litter-bearers and lantern-bearers for our surgeons who went over that part of the field of battle, succoring and attending the wounded. It crossed the Chickahominy before daylight, destroying the bridge as ordered. In command of remnant of Cavalry Division present in the retreat from Savage Station to Harrison's Landing. Then applied to be relieved from duty with the Army of the Potomac, and July 6th was ordered to report at Washington. President Gen. Ct. Ml. at St. Louis, Mo., '62–3, and member of a ("cotton") Court of Inquiry there, and at camp of our army before Vicksburg; in command at Baton Rouge of District of La. to May, '64; then superintended Gen. Rectg. Serv. in N. York to Mar. 19, '66; on Retiring Board of disabled officers '65–6; Apr. 1, '66, established and in comd. of new Mil. Reynolds, to reinforce Buford's Cavalry, who were holding the ridge west of the Seminary, and Gen. Reynolds was killed within fifteen minutes after the firing began; Gen. Doubleday took his place, acting for some hours in command of the field, when Gen. Howard made his presence known. The 11th Corps was thrown in on the right of the 1st Corps, but soon gave way. This threw the weight of all the Confederate forces on the 1st Corps, which had been contending from 10 A.M. to 3 P.M. in a single line against double lines of A. P. Hill's troops, who outflanked them for a quarter of a mile on the left, while two divisions, under Ewell, came down upon its right flank. The 1st Corps, after successive and desperate echelons of resistance, fell back to the cemetery above the town. The 1st Corps went into this contest about 8200 strong and came out with only about 3500 men. The men fought desperately, and there seemed to be no straggling. On this occasion the 1st Corps captured Archer's Brigade, the greater part of Davis' Brigade, and almost annihilated Iverson's Brigade. When the enemy pierced the centre of Gen. Meade's line on the ridge the second day Gen. Doubleday's Division (including a brigade of fresh troops from Vermont, under Gen. Stannard, which had been ordered to report to him) was sent to assist in regaining the position. The enemy were already retreating when he arrived, but he followed them up and retook six guns which they had captured. When Pickett's grand charge advanced against the left centre of Gen. Meade's line of battle on the third day it struck Gen. Webb's Division on the right of Gen. Doubleday's command. In their advance the charging column exposed their right flank, and Gen. Doubleday's front line, under Gen. Stannard, wheeled, threw themselves upon the vulnerable point and disordered the enemy's advance to such an extent that they were easily repulsed. On their retreat they occupied temporarily a slashing where trees had been cut to clear the ground for our artillery fire. There two of Gen. Doubleday's regiments, under Colonel (now General) Gates, of the 20th New York S. M., charged the slashing, drove out the enemy and completed the rout of Pickett's force. At the close of the action Gen. Doubleday was struck by a piece of shell and knocked from his horse. After the battle Gen. Doubleday ascertained that a junior officer was assigned to the command of the corps. He remonstrated against this and was ordered to report to Washington. President of a military commission at Washington, D. C., for the punishment of fraudulent contractors, deserters and bounty-jumpers, winter of '63–4; July 12, '64, was assigned to the command of a division composed of citizen clerks and about 1200 soldiers in the forts southeast of Washington, D. C., during Early's raid on Washington; April 14, '65, on invitation from the War Dept., accompanied an expedition to raise over Fort Sumter the same old flag which had floated there at the beginning of the war; at Hart Island, N. On his way to Brownsville, while crossing the sand desert beyond Corpus Christi, was stung in the night by some venomous reptile. His health was seriously impaired, and as he had been more than thirty years in service, he applied to be retired. He was offered an indefinite sick leave, but as he could not reconcile himself to receive full pay without rendering any equivalent, he preferred to retire. He did so Dec. 11, '73, on the lineal rank of Colonel. Battles, skirmishes, etc.—Battle of Monterey, Sep. 21–3, '46; in Fort Sumter, S. Ducat, Arthur C. (First Lieut. 24th Inf.). Born in Chicago, Ill., Sept. 25, 1856. Retiring year, 1920; Cadet at Mil. Acad. in '75; graduated in '79. Actual rank—2d Lieut. 11th Inf. June 13, '79; transferred to 3d Cav. Sept. 8, '79; 1st Lieut. Nov. 30, '83; transferred to 24th Inf. Feb. 23, '87. Service—Reported for duty at Fort McKinney, Wyo., Oct. 2, '79, and was ordered into the field, with his troop, the next day, to take part in the field operations against the hostile Utes; was initiated into the service by a 250 mile march, in the winter, in Wyoming; at the close of this campaign was ordered to Fort Sanders, Wyo., with his troop, and served there two years; employed in rebuilding the military road from Rock Creek to Fort Fetterman, and in constructing a bridge over the marshy land between Fort Sanders and the city of Laramie; while en route, in 1881, to take advantage of a long leave of absence, he turned back to his command, having heard that they were ordered after the Ute Indians in Colorado; was attached to Col. Carleton's command; this command encountered on the 20th of June, in this year, a severe snow-storm, this showing the uncertainty of summer weather in Colorado and Wyoming. In '82 was ordered, with his troop, to Fort Russell, Wyo.; in the summer of '82 his regiment was ordered, post haste, to Arizona, to assist the 6th Cav. in the Apache campaign; was in the saddle for 11 of the 12 months he served in Arizona, the time being mostly spent in scouting after Indians and looking up their whereabouts, with small, swift-moving detachments; while stationed at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., was detailed, under instructions from Gen. Crook, to move along the boundary line between the United States and Mexico, from New Mexico to the Gulf of California, and to report the condition of affairs there, and examine the position of the monuments marking the boundary line, as a preliminary survey for the information of the Engineer detachment, which was soon to survey the same. The report submitted by Lt. Ducat upon this occasion was of great interest, no one having been over the line since 1854; much that was new and strange was related; was complimented by Capt. Symonds, of the Engineers, for the usefulness of his report. It was of great service to Lt. Ducat later in his long trip over the line. He marched 760 miles in 73 days on this trip, being once three days without water; detailed as a student at the School of Application at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, graduating there with good standing; reported to his troop at Fort Davis, Texas; the day after arriving there was sent out in command of a troop of cavalry to guard Viejo Pass, on the Rio Grande, and the water-holes thereabouts, against a party of Apaches, who were said to be coming northward under the chief Geronimo, from Sonora, in Mexico. Upon his return to Fort Davis, was sent, with his troop, to take station at Camp Pena Colorado, Texas; in the fall of '86 was ordered, in command of his troop, back to Fort Davis; shortly after this was ordered, with a troop, to investigate the cattle-stealing and the atrocities of highwaymen on the Mexican frontier, and in the vicinity of Presidio del Norte and Fort Quitman, on the Rio Grande. His report brought him into a little paper war with the Mexican minister in Washington. In '87, having grown too heavy for the cavalry service (weighing 245 lbs.), he transferred to the 24th Inf. He reported at Fort Sill, I. T. While here commanded a troop of cavalry in the Indian troubles at Anadarko, the Kiowas having broken out. In May, '88, was ordered to Arizona; he was sent in command of his company to San Carlos, Ariz. In Oct., '88, was Prof. of Mil. Science and Tactics at the Nevada State University; was the first military officer at this college, and organized the Military Department there. Staff positions occupied—Post Adj., A. A. Q. M., A. C. S., Ord. Officer, Signal Officer and Range Officer at Camp Pena Colorado, Tex.; Post Adj. and A. A. Q. M. at San Carlos, Ariz. Commands held—Camp Pena Colorado, Tex.; Troop in fall of '86; Troop of Cav. in the Indian troubles at Anadarko; Co. at San Carlos, Ariz. History—Son of Gen. A. C. Ducat, of Chicago, who was the Inspector General of the Armies of the Cumberland and Tennessee, under Rose rans and Thomas. Gen. Ducat was lately the Major General commanding the Illinois State Militia, and commanded it in the great Chicago riots.

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF WEST POINT, U. S. MILITARY ACADEMY, WEST POINT, NEW YORK, November 26, 1881.

To whom it may concern: Lieutenant Edward S. Farrow, 21st Infantry, went through the two lengthy campaigns against Indians in the Northwest, viz:—The Nez Percé of '77, and that of the Piute and Bannock of '78. He commanded a Company during both, and at the close I gave him special commendation for his gallant conduct. Again he was placed by me in command of a Company of Scouts which took part in an expedition against the Snake Indians, sometimes called "Sheep-Eaters," during the season of '79. In this expedition Lieutenant Farrow had a marked success in consummating the capture of the entire band of Indian outlaws. He again received the highest praise of prudence, bravery, and enterprise, and was recommended for two brevets, viz.:—that of First Lieutenant and of Captain. In '80, I entrusted him with a larger and still more important command, owing to my confidence in his energy and willingness to do hard work in a rough, almost inaccessible country—where the worst of renegades had congregated to raid upon the settlements, or catch and rob the passers by. He brought to us valuable information of that wild region, until then quite unknown, situated near the headwaters of the Salmon River of Northeastern Idaho. He has since then been detailed as an Instructor of Tactics at the Military Academy, where he has, by untiring industry, added materially to the instruction of the Cadets, by putting into practical form a Military System of Gymnastics—this in addition to his ordinary work of the instruction in Tactics. I have found in him the best of qualities for a thorough soldier, viz.: Fidelity to the duty in hand, much enterprise in adding to and circulating military knowledge, and very great energy of character. His habits of life are regular and without reproach.

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, May 28, 1886.

First Lieut. Edward S. Farrow, 21st Infantry, Sea Side Park, New Jersey.

Sir: Referring to your letter of the 19th instant, . . . I am instructed by the Secretary of War to say that he has no desire to thwart any wish you may have in regard to quitting the service, but he thinks that the services of an officer who has shown so much spirit as you have, and who is so accomplished in his profession, should not be lost to the Government, and he therefore declines to now accept your resignation.

nominated by President Hayes for the brevets of First Lieut. and Capt. Service—In the field '77, '78 and in '79; instructor of tactics at Military Academy, Feb., 23; at present acting as Chief Engineer of construction at Barnegat Park, N. HEADQUARTERS MILITARY DIVISION OF THE MISSOURI, CHICAGO, ILLS., JUNE 17TH, 1878.

At his own request Lieut. Colonel James W. Forsyth, 1st U. S. Cavalry, is relieved from duty on the Staff of the Lieut. General, and in consequence of his promotion will proceed to join his regiment in the Division of the Pacific.

Since the early spring of 1864 Lieut. Colonel Forsyth has performed the various duties of Chief of Staff, Inspector General, Aide-de-Camp and Military Secretary, in the most satisfactory manner, rendering the most essential aid to his Commanding General during the War of the Rebellion, and in the several positions he has held since, and it is with the deepest regret the Lieut. General consents that his recent promotion shall deprive him of Colonel Forsyth's valuable services, endeared to him as he is by an association, official and social, of so many years.

In the field of duty to which he is called, Colonel Forsyth bears with him the best wishes of all who have been connected with him by duty and companionship for the last fourteen years.

O., Nov. 1, '87); on October 25, '87, assigned to duty by the Secretary of War as Assistant in his office and continued on this duty in the War Department, Washington, until Nov. 17, '88; during this employment he successfully argued for the War Department in the Court of Claims under the "Bowman Act" of March 3, '83, six cases of great importance to the army involving the validity of adverse decisions by the Treasury Department, that Department being represented and defended by the Attorney General's Department; he was also President of a Board of officers to prepare a revision of the Articles of War for consideration of Congress; from October, '66, in addition to his other duties, he was employed under successive Secretaries of War in very many important cases in the Civil Courts (State and United States), affecting the Army or Navy, for which, on several occasions, he received the thanks, respectively, of the War or Navy Department. Among those of special interest to the military service were Private John M. Finkbone's case in the Ohio Supreme Court in banc, in April, '70; Private John McConologue's case in Massachusetts, Supreme Judicial Court in banc, in April, '71; Private Abijah Tarble's case in Circuit Court for Dane County, Wisconsin, in August, '69, and in United States Supreme Court (G. O. 16, Army Hd. Qrs. A. G. O. April 16, '72); Sergeant John Anderson Mason's case in U. S. Circuit Court for Northern District of New York and in U. S. Supreme Court (G. O. '61, Army Hd. Qrs. A. G. O., June 7, '82); Ordnance Sergeant Dennis Kelly's case, charged with murder, in Maine Supreme Judicial Court in banc, in July '83. In a number of cases he was called upon to defend officers of the Army against whom actions had been brought for damages for acts done by them in their public capacity, or to take by writ of error to appellate Courts cases involving performance of military duty, which had been unsuccessfully defended by local counsel. He also served, in addition to his other duties, on several military Courts and Boards of extraordinary importance, viz.: as Counsel for Surgeon Elisha I. Bailey, on his trial and "honorable" acquittal by General Court Martial, July, '70; on the Army Military Prison Board, which went to Canada to investigate the system of Military Prison discipline in the British Army, July–August, '70; as counsel for government and Recorder in the investigation of the charges made by the Secretary of War as to the administration of the Freedman's Bureau and disbursement of public funds by Major General O. O. Howard, Commissioner, before the Special Court of Inquiry ordered by Congress, February 13, '74, of which General Sherman was President, March 3, '74, to May 9, '74; Counsel for Government and Recorder in the Fitz-John Porter case, June 20, '78–March 12, '79; Counsel for General Grant and Lieutenant General P. H. Sheridan Respondents, in the Court of Inquiry as to Maj. Genl. G. K. Warren's conduct as commander of the Fifth Army Corps, in the battles, in '65, of Gravelly Run and Five Forks, May 4, '80–July 30, '81; Judge Advocate of the General Court Martial in the trial of colored cadet J. C. Whittaker in New York City, January 20 to May, '81, and in the trial of Judge Advocate General D. G. Swaim, U. S. HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY, WASHINGTON, D. C., January 26th, 1883.

This Petition of Colonel George W. Getty, 4th Artillery, Brevet Major General U. S. Army, is hereby most respectfully forwarded to the Honorable Secretary of War with an earnest recommendation that he will forward a copy to each of the two Houses of Congress, with such favorable recommendation as will command the attention of that Body. On the second day of October, 1883, General Getty will be 64 years of age, and, by Existing Law, will be retired on three fourths of the pay proper of a Colonel. His petition recites in detail his most honorable career of service in the Army of the United States continuously since the year 1836, and it so happens that I am able from memory to verify nearly every fact therein set forth. As we were classmates at West Point, and have from time to time been associated ever since, I ask the privilege not only to endorse his petition, but to add my own, that this act of simple justice may be done as an example to younger men who may thereby be encouraged to imitate his example. George Getty as a boy and man, through a long eventful life, has been a Model Gentleman and Soldier, of unexceptional habits, of superior intelligence, and high professional acquirements. He has always been selected in war and peace for high and responsible commands. Modest to a fault, he has never pushed himself forward into undue prominence, but has done well all that he was appointed to do, and has always been sought for by his services, for posts requiring high qualification and professional excellence. He has commanded Divisions in Battle, Departments or Districts in Peace, and is now serving on his Brevet Rank of Major-General. It does seem to me unfair that a Great Nation like the United States should compel a Colonel to do the work of a Major-General on the pay of a Colonel through years of life, and, when age brings its natural infirmity, to turn him out on the diminished pay of his lowest rank. It would seem more just to meet these exceptional cases by a General Law—but, as Congress reserves to itself to deal with these cases, I most respectfully represent that the principle of Common Justice seems to demand that General Getty should, during his few remaining years, have for the support of himself and of his dependent family, the retired pay of a Major-General Even this will fall far short of compensation for the labor and responsibility imposed on him by Superior Authority, in exacting from him the work of a Major-General on the pay of a Colonel. (Signed) W. T. SHERMAN, General.

He was assigned to the command of the Arctic expedition of '80, but the order was subsequently revoked, because of an unfavorable report made by a board of naval officers upon the vessel which had been selected for the service. The Lady Franklin Bay expedition was then organized during the spring and summer of '81, and in July he sailed from St. John's, N. F., in command, with the intention of remaining absent for two years. The object of the expedition was to establish a supply and meteorological station at Lady Franklin Bay and make explorations northward from that place. Lieutenant Greely was for six years a student of Arctic explorations, and his experiences of twelve years in the signal service in the army, particularly in compiling observations and forecasting the daily weather reports, were such as to qualify him for the scientific part of the work; the results of his researches have added valuable information to the subject of Arctic explorations, although his expedition met with the misfortune of being shipwrecked, and the entire party reduced to a state of starvation before the remnants of it were discovered by a naval expedition sent to their relief. Battles, skirmishes, etc.—Engaged at the siege of Yorktown, action of West Point, battles of Fair Oaks, Peach Orchard, Savage Station, White Oak Swamp (wounded), Malvern Hill, Va., Antietam, Md. (wounded), and Fredericksburg, Va., siege of Port Hudson, La.

"2. To Rev. Osgood E. Herrick, Chaplain U. S. A., and his estimable wife. There is probably not a single officer or soldier stricken down who does not feel greatly indebted for their sympathies and their kind and constant attentions. The arduous services, too, of the Chaplain, both as pastor and friend, among the stricken in the city, as well as in garrison, were unremitting to the extent of sacrificing his own health for the good of others. Contrary to the advice of the Commanding Officer and his physician, this officer insisted upon keeping his post in spite of ill health, and continuing in the performance of every duty—official, pastoral, and social—until this epidemic was stayed; and he has thereby shown how well the great military virtue of self-sacrifice combines with the higher virtues of religion."

From Gen. Sedgwick's Report of the Battles of White Oak Swamp and Glendale, June 30, 1862.

"About 3 P. M. a very fierce and strong attack was made upon McCall's Division in the first line, which after a short resistance retired. . . . . Burns went immediately to meet the enemy, and Davis' and Sully's Brigades were recalled, again marching a part of the way at double quick. The Nineteenth Mass., Col. Hinks, was the first to arrive, and, scarcely pausing to draw breath, gallantly dashed at the enemy. The others followed and went to the front as they came up. . . . The entire division was now hotly engaged, the greater part of it until night, and not only did these troops meet and repulse the assaults of the enemy, but were forced to withstand the demoralizing influence of the panic among those of the first line, who in many instances broke through our ranks in their haste to move out of reach of the enemy's fire. . . . We have to deplore the loss of several valuable officers. Col. Hinks, Nineteenth Massachusetts, fell, dangerously wounded, during the action at Glendale while gallantly leading his regiment. Major Howe, of the same regiment, fell at the same time."—Report of Battles of Glendale, by Gen. John Sedgwick, vol xi. part ii. page 81, Rep. of the War.

"By direction of Gen. Sedgwick, I placed the 91st Penn. and 19th Mass. in support of the first line. . . . While perfecting this line another attack was made on the left centre, and I found that the 7th Mich. and 42d New York had broken from the front line, the enemy rapidly advancing through the gap. I threw the 71st Penn., Col. Jones, and 19th Mass., Col. Hinks, into the breach, and nobly did they redeem the faults of their comrades.

"These two noble regiments met the enemy face to face, and for nearly an hour poured into them such tremendous volleys that no further attack was had at the vital point."—From Gen. W. W. Burns' Report of the Battle of Glendale, vol. xi. part ii. Official Reports of the War, page 92.

From Gen. Dana's Report of the Action at Nelson's Farm (Glendale), June 30, 1862.

"I regret to report that some of the most valuable officers of my command are lost to the service for the present. . . . Colonel Hinks, next in rank, a most gallant and competent officer, severely wounded at Nelson's Farm, has been sent to the rear"

From Special Report of Gen. Sedgwick, Dated July 11, 1862.

"I would submit the name of Colonel Edward W. Hinks, of the Nineteenth Massachusetts Volunteers, for the appointment of Brigadier. He led his fine regiment through all the actions up to Glendale, when he fell, wounded severely. His regiment has behaved handsomely on every occasion, and has been handsomely led.

From Special Report of Gen. Sedgwick, Dated Dec. 5, 1862.

"I have already forwarded through the proper channels a list of officers and soldiers who are distinguished for gallantry and good conduct, recommending them for promotion, and I would again commend to your Excellency, . . . Colonel Hinks, of the Nineteenth. . . . Great credit is due to these officers for the splendid condition in which their regiments took the field. The Fifteenth and Nineteenth are in my opinion fully equal to any two in the service.

"I have on two occasions strongly recommended the appointment of Colonel Hinks as Brigadier General. He disciplined and brought into the field one of the finest regiments, and has been twice wounded while gallantly leading it in battle. I again urge the appointment."

From General Orders of Gen. W. F. Smith, June 17, 1864.

* * * * * *

"To the colored troops, comprising the Division of General Hinks, the General commanding would call the attention of his command. With the veterans of the 18th Corps they have stormed the works of the enemy and carried them, taking guns and prisoners, and in the whole affair they have displayed all the qualities of good soldiers."

From Gen. W. F. Smith's Special Report to Brig. Gen. Rawlins, Chief of Staff of Armies of the U. S., June 18, 1864.

"The ill health of Brigadier General Hinks, commanding Colored Division, will compel him to give up his duties for a while, if not permanently, and I am left without a proper officer to command a division, the value of which will depend upon the ability with which it is led."

HEADQUARTERS FOURTH DIVISION ARMY OF THE OHIO,
FIELD OF SHILOH, April 12, 1862.

COL. J. B. FRY, Ass't Adjt. Gen'l, Chief of Staff.

Sir: I desire to call the especial attention of the General commanding this Army to the admirable hospital accommodations adopted by Dr. Irwin, U. S. A., Medical Inspector of the Division, during the battle of the 7th inst. They will be found as nearly perfect as the circumstances would allow. The wounded in the Division did not suffer from the inclement weather; they were all promptly sheltered and cared for. I beg to recommend Dr. Irwin to the favorable consideration of his superiors.

Very respectfully,

(Signed) W. NELSON, Brigadier General.

Honorably mentioned in "Records of the Rebellion," vol. x., series i., part i., pp. 325–6; vol. xvi., p. 915:—

M. 2d Cav. from June 12, '55, to Sept. 30, '56. Service—Joined at Fort Snelling, Minn., where he served until '51; transferred to Texas, and had stations at Forts Duncan and Terrett until March 3, '53; joined at Louisville, Ky., June 7, and soon thereafter proceeded to Jefferson Barracks, where stationed to Oct. 17, when he marched with the regiment to Fort Mason, Texas, where he arrived Jan. 14, '56; served at Forts Mason and Belknap, and Camps Colorado, Radziminski and Cooper to Dec. 1, '56; Dec., '56, in a combat with a band of Comanches on the head-waters of the Concho River, where, after a sharp conflict, he defeated the Indians with a severe loss, captured their horses and camp equipage, and rescued a Mexican captive; participated in the Wichita expedition of '58, and engaged in the brilliant action at Wichita Village Oct. 1; defeated a party of hostile Indians Feb. 13, '60, between Kickapoo and Brady Creeks, and he accompanied Maj. Thomas during the summer of '60 in an expedition to the head-waters of the Concho and Colorado Rivers; was frequently commended in orders from the headquarters of the army and the Dept. of Texas for services in the field and gallantry in action; was serving at Fort Mason, commanding a squadron and the non-commissioned staff and band of the regiment, when Texas was surrendered to the insurgents; he could do no better than obey the order, and he accordingly abandoned the post March 29, '61, and marched to Indianola; embarked on the steamship "Empire City" just in time to escape capture, and sailed for N. Y., and proceeded thence to Carlisle, where they arrived April 27; proceeded in June to Chambersburg, Pa., and participated in General Patterson's Shenandoah campaign, and was engaged in the action at Falling Waters and the skirmishes at Martinsburg and Bunker Hill; on leave of absence August 28, for the purpose of accepting the the Lieutenant Colonelcy of the 3d Kentucky Cav., and proceeded to Louisville; placed in command of the Home Guards, numbering twelve hundred men, and ordered to Lebanon Junct'n, on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad; joined the 3d Kentucky Cav. at Owensboro', where he served until Oct. 11, '61; in command of a brigade in General Anderson's army, then in front of Louisville, Ky.; served with the army on the march to Nashville and through Tennessee en route to Pittsburg Landing, until he was prostrated at Columbia, Tenn., by malarial fever, and compelled to return to Louisville for medical treatment; rejoined brigade after the battle of Shiloh, and participated in the skirmishes (routing the enemy in his front May 28) and marches of the army during the advance upon Corinth from April 9 to May 30, '62; command formed a part of the Army of the Ohio, under General Buell, on the march through North Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky; was defeated Aug. 28, '62, in an engagement with Morgan's Confederate cavalry near Gallatin, Tenn., and in striving to rally his troops was captured by the enemy; was soon exchanged, and a partial reorganization of the army gave him a division, which he commanded at the battle of Stone River, where he won the commendation of General Rosecrans as an officer who "ought to be made a Major General"; participated in the advance on Tullahoma, June 24 to July 4, '63, and fought with his Division at Liberty Gap, Tenn., June 24–5; his Division behaved handsomely at Chickamauga, driving the enemy a mile and a half and capturing seven pieces of artillery, together with a large number of prisoners, arms and colors; participated in the defense of and operations around Chattanooga from Sept., '63, to May, '64, and was engaged in the battle of Missionary Ridge and the pursuit of the enemy immediately thereafter; General Grant, who was so situated as to have a full view of the entire line, says in his report, "The Divisions of Baird, Sheridan and Johnson moved up the hill in line, and simultaneously carried the crest of the Ridge." Commanded a Division of the Fourteenth Corps, Army of the Cumberland, during the invasion of Georgia, May and June, '64, and was engaged in the operations around Dalton, the demonstrations against Resaca, and the pursuit of the enemy with constant skirmishing, including the battle of New Hope Church, where he was severely wounded by a shell and compelled to retire from the field; rejoined his Division June 13, and commanded it until Aug. 22, when it became evident that he was too weak to endure the hardships of field service. General Sherman then appointed him Chief of Cavalry of the Mil. Div. of the Mississippi, and dispatched him to Nashville to equip and forward cavalry from that station; but when the march to the sea was begun, and General Hood invested Nashville, his occupation was gone, and he reported to General Thomas, who assigned him, Nov. 8, to the command of a Division of Cavalry, which he retained until Oct. 12, '65; was engaged in the battle of Nashville, and was highly complimented on the field by General Thomas for "skill, energy, and ability," and in the telegraphic report to the President at the end of the first day's battle, General Thomas said: "I must not forget to report the operations of Brigadier General Richard W. Johnson in successfully driving the enemy, with the aid of the gunboats under Lieutenant Commander Fitch, from their established batteries on the Cumberland below the city of Nashville." Was then assigned to the command of the Middle District of Tennessee, and held that position until Jan. 15, '66, when he was mustered out of volunteer service. Was Provost Marshal General of the Mil. Div. of the Tennessee from Oct. 12, '65, to Aug. 13, '65, and Acting Judge Advocate of the same Division from Dec. 5, '65, to Aug. 13, '66, and of the Dept. of the Tennessee from Aug. 13, '66, to March 15, '67, and of the Dept. of the Cumberland from March 15, '67, to Oct. 12, '67, when he was retired from active service with the rank of Major General (changed to Brigadier General by act of Congress of March 3, '75, not having "lost a leg or arm") for wounds received in the line of duty. He is the author of a pamphlet entitled "Manual of Arms for Colt's Breech-Loading Carbine and Navy Revolver"; was orator at the organization of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland, Feb. 7, '67, in Mozart Hall, Cincinnati; was Professor of Military Science in the Missouri State University from July, '68, to July, '69, when he, in common with all officers on the retired list, was relieved from duty; the degree of A. M. was conferred upon him by the University; was elected, in Sept., '69, Professor of Military Science in the University of Minnesota, but resigned the position Jan. 1, '71. June 9, '63, for gallant and meritorious services in action at Monticello, Ky.; Bvt. Lieut. Col. June 9, '64, for gallant and meritorious services in an attack on Petersburg, Va.; Bvt. Col. Oct. 7, '64, for gallant and meritorious services in action on the Darbytown Road, Va.; Bvt. Brig. Gen. and Bvt. Maj. Gen. Mar. 13, '65, for gallant and meritorious services in the field during the War; Bvt. Maj. Gen. Vol., Oct. 28, '64, for gallant and meritorious services during the campaign against Richmond, Va. Honorably mentioned—Commended for gallantry in G. O. No. 14 from the Hdqrs. of the Army dated Nov. 13, '57, by Gen. Scott for services at the Indian War on Puget Sound. Service—Served in the Mexican War on the Northern Campaign under Gen. Taylor; in Oregon and Washington Ter., until the Civil War; participated in the Rogue River War, '53 and '55; was wounded in the latter and again wounded in the Spring of '56 in the Indian War on Puget Sound; served through the Pen nsular Campaign of '62, and at South Mountain Sept. 10, '62; ordered to Camp Chase, Ohio, to remount and refit, and remained there from Dec. '62, to Apr., '63; early in Apr., '63, in the field and served in Ky., his regiment forming a part of Gen. Carter's Division of the Army of the Ohio; participated in a number of engagements until the Morgan Raid, which he joined from the Cumberland River to Portland, Ohio; his judicious attack on Morgan's rear early in the morning with simply the advance of Hobson's force, which was fifteen miles in rear, prevented Morgan from recrossing the Ohio and caused his rout which led to the capture on that day and the day following; upon the organization of the 23d Corps for the Campaign into E. Tenn. was assigned as Chief of Cavalry of the Corps and served in that capacity to the capture of Knoxville, and through the subsequent siege by the rebel forces; in Jan., '64, Gen. Wilson was placed in charge of the Cavalry Bureau and asked for Col. Kautz as his Chief Assistant; in the following spring both Wilson and Kautz took the field, the latter having been appointed Brigadier-General of Vol., and assigned to the command of the Cavalry Division of the Army of the James; this command was an independent command under Gen. Butler, and was used by him to cut the railroads south of Richmond and Petersburg while Bermuda Hundred was being occupied; he served alternately with the Army of the James and the Army of the Potomac throughout the year '64; he entered Petersburg with his small cavalry command on June 9, '64, and had he been properly supported by the infantry it might have been held, and the long siege that followed might have been avoided; he led the advance of the Wilson Raid which cut the roads leading into Richmond from the south for more than forty days; during the winter of '64–65 he held and picketed the right flank of the Army of the James, with his cavalry command; when the dispositions were made for the final campaign in the last days of March, '65, he was assigned to the 1st Division, 25th Army Corps, as Brevet Major-General, and marched his division of colored troops into Richmond on April 3; soon after the death of Mr. Lincoln, he was detailed as a member of the Military Commission for the trial of the conspirators implicated in the assassination; Gen. Kautz served with his regiment in Mississippi on reconstruction duty, and in '69, on the reduction of the Army, was assigned Lieut.-Col. 15th Inf., and commanded the regiment for several years on the New Mexican frontier; while stationed at Fort Stanton, N. M., with only one company of infantry and one of cavalry, he organized several successful expeditions against the Mescalero Apaches, who had fled from their reservation in '64; during his tour there of '70-71, he succeeded in bringing in the tribe and establishing them on their reservation, where they have since remained; the Indian Department reports their number at 1400; in June, '74, he was promoted Colonel of the 8th Inf. and joined his regiment in Arizona; in March, '75, was placed in command of the Dept. of Arizona and relieved Gen. Crook, and until '78 was able to successfully direct the affairs of that troublesome section without any unusual draft upon the regular appropriations, and without asking for an additional soldier beyond the two regiments then pertaining to the command, and only a fourth of the troops at Gen. Miles' disposal, in the subsequent subjugation of the Indians of Arizona; he had not only Indians to contend with, but a very troublesome faction under the Governor of the Territory, who, for personal motives, embarrassed his operations; he maintained himself successfully against both; since commanding the Dept. of Arizona, Gen. Kautz has been in command of his Rgt., with the exception of a ten months' leave of absence in Europe in '83. Commands held—Com. 6th U. S. Cav. during the seven days' fight and up to South Mountain Sep. 10, '62; Camp Chase, O., from Dec., '62, to April, '63; com. of the Cavalry Division of the Army of the James, '64; command of the 15th Inf. for several years on the New Mexico frontier; in command of the Dept. of Arizona, from March, '75, to '78; Benicia Barracks, Angel Island, Cal., Fort Lowell, Arizona, and now at Fort Niobrara, Neb. History—When the army was reorganized in '66, he was appointed Lieut.-Col. 34th Inf. His services, it was thought, entitled him to a Colonelcy, but being accredited to Ohio and being still in the regular service, he was excluded from full credit under the law for his services as a volunteer officer. The law required that appointments should be apportioned to the States in proportion to the number of men furnished to the volunteer service from each, and that two-thirds of the appointments under the law should go to officers of volunteers and one-third to the officers of the regular service who had distinguished themselves. Ohio was ahead of all the States in the number of general officers, and such men as Woods, Crook, Kautz, McCook and Custer had to content themselves with Lieut.-Colonelcies, and some of them had to take rank under those whom they had commanded during the War. Kautz became the Lieut.-Colonel of a regiment the Colonel of which—a very gallant officer—was ten years his junior and had been only a Colonel in the War, but promoted at its close to a Brigadier for gallantry at Fort Fisher. But being from Pennsylvania, which had furnished a large quota for the War and had produced proportionally a much smaller proportion of general officers, Pennypacker was made Colonel and Kautz Lieut.-Colonel of the 34th Inf. During and about the close of the War, Gen. Kautz published several small handbooks for military service, of which "The Company Clerk" proved most valuable to the volunteer army, and all of them are to be found in most of the Military Libraries of the Army.

March 13, '65, for gallant and meritorious services during the campaign ending with the surrender of the insurgent Army of Northern Va.; Bvt. Maj. Gen. Vol. Oct. 19, '64, for gallant and meritorious services in the battles of Winchester and Fisher's Hill, Va. Service—In the field with the Army of the Potomac in the Virginia Peninsular Campaign; on the staff of General Cooke until Sept., '62, when he was transferred to the headquarters of the defenses and Department of Washington, commanded by General Heintzelman, where he remained until April, '63; again entered the field as an A. D. C. for Brigadier-General Stoneman, and served with him in April and May, during his raid towards Richmond; rejoined his regiment, which he commanded in the cavalry engagement at Beverly Ford, where, June 9, '63, the National forces crossed the Rappahannock, surprised the enemy's pickets, and maintained for hours an obstinate battle with a superior force; narrowly escaped capture, being at one time almost, if not quite, surrounded by the enemy; won the highest commendation from General Buford for conspicuous gallantry on that field; and in those days the praise of John Buford was more highly esteemed by the officers under his command than a brevet commission; commanded regiment in the engagements at Upperville and Aldie; assigned to the command of the Res. Cav. Brigade of the Army of the Potomac during the Pennsylvania Campaign, and participated in the battle of Gettysburg; the pursuit of the enemy to Warrenton; the actions at Williamsport, Hagerstown, Boonesboro', Funkstown, Falling Waters, and Manassas Gap; succeeded General Buford in the command of the First Division of Cavalry; participated in the operations in Central Virginia, and was engaged at Culpepper Court-House, Brandy Station, and Barnett's Ford; participated in the Richmond Campaign of '64, and was engaged at Todd's Tavern, Yellow Tavern, Meadow Bridge, Hawes' Shop, Old Church, and Cold Harbor; accompanied General Sheridan on the Cavalry raid towards Charlottesville, and was engaged in the battle of Trevillian Station (where he rescued the Third Division of Cavalry from impending capture when almost surrounded by the enemy), and the action at Derbytown; transferred in Aug., '64, from the Army of the Potomac to the Shenandoah Valley, and moved, by the way of City Point, Giesboro' Point, and Harper's Ferry, to Halltown, where he arrived about the 8th. His division (First) was then composed of seventeen regiments of cavalry, organized into three brigades (commanded by Custer, Devin, and Gibbs), and two batteries of artillery; then came the struggle with General Early's Army for the possession of the Valley, during which General Merritt was continuously employed with his command, and participated in the affairs at Stone Chapel, Newtown, Cedarville, Kearneysville, Bunker Hill, Leetown, Smithfield, Berryville, Opequan Creek, and the battle of Winchester, where the turning column of cavalry at a critical moment, when the result of the battle was uncertain, repeatedly charged the left of the enemy's line, and, together with the rallied infantry, swept down upon General Early and sent him whirling through Winchester; the affair at Cedarville, near Front Royal on the Shenandoah, was a brilliant success for General Merritt, being gained unaided and against odds; he defeated General Kershaw's division of infantry and two brigades of cavalry in an attempt to force a passage of the Shenandoah, and inflicted upon the enemy a loss of six hundred men; then followed the movement to Front Royal, the engagement at Milford, and the skillful manœuvering of the cavalry in front of Bunker Hill, until the Sixth and Nineteenth Corps seized an advanced position in front of Fisher's Hill, which they held until the Eighth Corps turned General Early's flank and forced him to abandon his fortifications, when the cavalry joined the pursuit and participated in the actions at Luray, Brown's Gap, Mount Crawford, and Woodstock, and on the 19th of Oct. General Merritt won for himself and his division an enduring fame at the battle of Cedar Creek, where he confronted the enemy from the first attack in the morning until their retreat that night, and held his position on the pike, just north of Middletown, all day, although entirely unassisted by the infantry, until the enemy gave up the contest, when he charged with his cavalry, and, crossing the stream below the bridge, continued the pursuit to Fisher's Hill, capturing and retaking a large number of guns and colors and much material of war; then followed the action at Middletown, and in the latter part of Nov. General Merritt was detached, with his division, to the east side of the Blue Ridge, by the way of Ashby's Gap, to operate against Mosby's guerrillas; he participated in the actions at Gordonsville in Dec. and at Ashland in March, '65; moved with General Sheridan in Feb. from the winter camp near Winchester, being in command of the cavalry of the Army of the Shenandoah; participated in the closing Richmond campaign of '65, and was engaged in the battle of Dinwiddie Court-House and Five Forks, where he commanded the left of the National lines; was engaged in the skirmishes at Scott's Cross-Roads and Drummond Mills (the cavalry of the Army of the James having been added to his command), the battle of Sailor's Creek, the action of Appomattox Station, and was present at the surrender at Appomattox Court-House on the 9th of April, '65, being one of the three commissioners from the National Army to arrange with the Confederate commissioners for the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia; he then participated in the movement against General J. E. Johnston's Army in North Carolina, after which he was transferred to the Military Division of the Southwest, where he served in command of two divisions of cavalry, and as chief of cavalry until July, '65; then to the command of the cavalry in the Department of Texas until Nov., and thereafter as chief of cavalry in the Mil. Div. of the Gulf until Dec. 31, '65; he visited Europe during the summer of '66, and upon his return to the U. S. was appointed Lieut.-Col. of the 9th Cav.; was employed on inspection duty, with station at the Headqrs. of the Dept. of the Gulf, until Feb., '67, when he assumed the command of his regiment at New Orleans and proceeded to Texas, and served at San Antonio and Fort Davis until Sept., '69; he was then appointed a member of the general tactics board which was convened at St. Louis, where he remained until Dec., '70, when he availed himself of a leave of absence until Oct., '71; he then returned to Texas and resumed the command of his regiment at Fort Stockton, and afterwards served at Forts Clark and Concho until May, '74; he was appointed in March, '75, Inspector of Cavalry for the Military Division of the Missouri, embracing the Departments of Texas, the Missouri, the Platte, and Dakota, and retained the position until July 1, '76, when he was promoted Colonel of the Fifth Cavalry; he immediately joined the regiment in the Department of the Platte, and commanded in the affair near Indian Creek, Wyo., July 17, '76, where he intercepted a large number of Cheyennes who were moving north to join the hostile

Sioux, and drove them back to the Red Cloud agency; he then moved by rapid marches to Goose Creek, Mont., where he effected a junction with General Crook, and relinquished the command of the regiment on the 4th of Aug., having been appointed chief of cavalry of the Big Horn and Yellowstone expedition; he participated in the skirmishes at Slim Buttes, Dak., Sept. 9–10, '76, and upon the disbandment of the expedition in Oct., at Fort Robinson, Neb., resumed the command of the regiment, and was assigned to Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., and subsequently to Fort Laramie, Wyo., from which point he was ordered in July, '82, to West Point as Superintendent of the Military Academy, remaining there until '86; upon being appointed Brig. Gen. he was assigned to the command of the Department of the Missouri, which he retains at the present time.

Extract from Report of Colonel H. A. Morrow, 21st Infantry, to the Adjutant General, U. S. Army, dated Fort Sidney, Neb., December 31, 1889, of the operations, etc., of the canteen at Fort Sidney, Nebraska:

"In closing this brief history of the canteen in the American Service, and particularly of its operations at Fort Sidney, I should be unjust to myself if I did not acknowledge my obligations to certain officers of the Twenty-first Infantry for many valuable recommendations and suggestions.

"Captain Evan Miles, then of the Twenty-first, now Major of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, by his zealous co-operation and faithful and intellligent administration of the affairs of the Twenty-first Infantry Canteen, deserves, perhaps, a larger share of credit than any other officer for making a great success of what was at first an experiment."

Miles, Nelson A. (Major General U. S. A.). Born in Massachusetts Aug. 8, 1839. Actual rank—Capt. 22d Mass. Inf. Sep. 9, '61; hon. must. out May 31, '62; Lieut. Col. 61st N. Y. Inf. May 31, '62; Col. Sep. 30, '62; Brig. Gen. May 12, '64; accepted June 27, '64; Maj. Gen. Oct. 21, '65; accepted Oct. 26, '65; hon. must. out Sep. 1, '66; Col. 40th U. S. Inf. July 28, '66; accepted Sept. 6, '66; transferred to 5th Inf. Mar. 15, '69; Brig. Gen. Dec. 15, '80; accepted Dec. 18, '80; Major General April 11, '90. Brevet rank—Bvt. Brig. Gen. Crosby, U. S. Mounted Riflemen, for cure of aneurism from arrow wound received fighting Indians at Lake Trinidad; in '59 at a time of great excitement was dispatched from Camp Floyd to Salt Lake City to attend Sergeant Pike, 10th U. S. Inf., who, when in uniform and present in obedience to summons of U. S. Court, was waylaid at noon in the public street, shot and mortally wounded by Spencer, in front of the public hotel; nothing was done to prevent the assassin's escape or bring him to justice; was Post Surgeon at Albuquerque, N. M., in the summer of '61 during the prevalence of small-pox; vaccination had been almost entirely neglected by the native population up to that date, and in consequence small-pox made its appearance in New Mexico without fail at intervals of five or six years; commencing at El Paso and presumably from Old Mexico, it progressed from one village to another in regular sequence, and, like measles and scarlet fever, was limited almost exclusively to young children; the attention of Governor Connolly was called to the importance of providing for public vaccination at the public expense and the matter was by him officially referred to the Legislature, but without result; in Washington, in May, '63, amputated thigh of Lieut. Kirby for gunshot fracture of the femur by two bullets from spherical case-shot at Chancellorsville; in '64 amputated thigh of General John C. Robinson for gunshot wound of knee-joint from rifle ball received in battle in the "Wilderness;" in Washington, amputated leg of Lieut. Smedberg, for disease of bone after primary amputation for gunshot wound of foot from shell explosion battle in the Wilderness. The following from Lieut. B. F. Rittenhouse, U. S. Army, retired, was written by request:

"August 1, 1885.

"I was wounded on the 19th of June, '64, and entered the hospital at Annapolis, Md., about 1 or 2 A.M. on the 21st of June. The date of the operation in Georgetown, D. C., will show how long it was postponed; I think it was eighteen or nineteen days. It was performed on Thursday, and I began to sink. Saturday night I was as cold as marble. I drank a bottle of whisky a day for a few days, and on Saturday drank more than a bottle; also beef tea, alternating beef tea and whiskey every half-hour. On Sunday I was better and from that date I improved rapidly. I lessened the whiskey as my appetite increased. In a few days I was able to eat. At first I suffered a good deal. I had no chills, but had profuse night-sweats. At no time had I numbness or any unusual feelings in my feet or limbs. At the time that I was shot it was very warm, but I became cold and requested to have my blanket put over me. The ball struck me on the left side of the back, on my tenth rib, three and a half inches from the centre of the spine, passed across it, and then buried itsef in the muscles on the right side of it. The course of the ball, after it arrived on the right of the spine, was at right angles to its previous course. The distance from the entrance of the ball to the point of extraction is four and one half inches. I had no pain in my back after the first two or three days, but was very weak in it."

In Washington attended Hon. William H. Seward, Secretary of State, for double fracture of the inferior maxillary bone caused by a fall from his carriage April 4, '65, and for wounds inflicted by Payne at 10 o'clock on the evening of April 14, '65. It was by authority of Mr. Stanton, Secretary of War, that Surg. Gen. Barnes directed a daily detail from Douglas Hospital of two enlisted men to keep watch by turns in the sick chamber at night; from that circumstance the assassination of Mr. Seward was prevented by George F. Robinson, 8th Maine Vols., now a paymaster in the army; in Washington in '78, amputated arm of Sergeant Penrod, Signal Service, for injury to elbow from fall on roof of station on Broadway, N. Y., in '77; in Washington, had charge of medical and surgical practice in all its department, including officers and general service men on duty in the War Department and their families and others as described and published in testimony of Attending Surgeon before Committees on Military Affairs, House of Reps., '78; the duty of Attending Surgeon in Washington included medical attendance at the Executive Mansion from May, '65, to March, '77,—including the terms of office of President Andrew Johnson and Gen. U. S. Grant.

March 25, '47, for gallant and meritorious conduct in the affair at Medelin; Bvt. Capt. Sept. 8, '47, for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Molino Del Rey; Bvt. Col. March 30, '65, and Bvt. Brig. Gen. March 30, '65, for meritorious and faithful services in the recruitment of the Armies of the United States. Honorably mentioned—Especially mentioned for distinguished services and gallantry at the battle of Cerro Gordo, and was commended in the highest terms by Major Sumner for efficiency at Molino del Rey; commended in orders from the headquarters of the Army for success and gallantry in Indian troubles on Aug. 30, '56; he received a vote of thanks enrolled on parchment from the Secession Convention for sending an expedition against hostile Indians (under Lieut. Arnold) after the State had seceded, which resulted in driving them across the Rio Grande, and it may be added that for performing this service he was reprimanded by the department commander. Service—Served in the war with Mexico, and was engaged in the principal battles and engagements ending with the operations before and the capture of the city of Mexico. The skirmish at Medelin was ended by the Second Dragoons under Maj. Sumner, charging the stone bridge in column of fours. The leading four consisted of Sumner, Adjt. Neill, Reg. Q. M. Lowry and Oakes. The Mexican force was followed several miles on a road which was lined with fences, woods and undergrowth. Lieut. Oakes, accompanied by Sergt. Leutz and Private Keith, getting ahead of the column, came on the rear of the retreating enemy, when about thirty took a road to the right, while the main body continued on the direct road. He followed the detachment until he had sabred and dismounted nearly all of them, when he returned to his command in the town of Medelin, and was then sent back to the camp near Vera Cruz for medical assistance. After the Mexican war he was ordered to Texas, where he served until June, '53, and had stations at Austin and at Forts Graham, Lincoln, Mason and Terrett. He was engaged in two combats with the Comanches between the Nueces and Rio Grande on the 11th of July and 12th of Aug., '50, and in the latter was twice severely wounded; employed on the Coast Survey from Sept. 29, '53, to April 4, '54, and was on cavalry recruiting service at Jefferson Barracks. He recruited a company at Pittsburgh and joined at Jefferson Barracks Aug. 24, '54, and marched with the regiment to Texas, and arrived at Fort Mason Jan. 14, '56, and was actively employed in the field during the following spring and summer. He overtook a party of Waco Indians on the 22d of Feb., '56, near the head-waters of the Nueces and severely punished them. He routed a party of Comanches on the 1st of May near the head-waters of the Concho, and on the 30th of August had three engagements with hostile Indians near the junction of the Pecos and the Rio Grande, in which he killed and wounded some and compelled the others to seek safety in Mexico; changed station to Ft. Clark in Aug., '56, and remained till May, '58, when he removed with his company to Ft. Belknap, where the regiment was ordered to concentrate for the march to Utah; but the order was countermanded, and he returned to Ft. Clark and served there until Dec., '58, when the condition of his wounds compelled him to accept a sick-leave of absence. Rejoined his company at Ft. Inge in Feb., '60, where he was serving when the Secession movement was inaugurated. He was a man of energy and determined purpose, and when he received "Twiggs' Order of Exercises," which required him to surrender the government property to the State commissioners and march his company to Indianola and there embark for New York, he dispatched couriers to Fort Duncan, Fort Clark and Camp Wood and urged a united action for the purpose of moving northward, out of the State, in defiance of the order, and requested that officers might be sent to Fort Inge to discuss the proposition and adopt a plan of action. Unfortunately for his plans Captain French had abandoned Fort Duncan and started for the mouth of the Rio Grande before the courier had arrived there. An answer was returned from Fort Clark that it was impossible to move the four companies of infantry as proposed, because they had no transportation. Lieut. Hood was sent from Camp Wood to make the necessary arrangements, but when he announced his purpose to resign if Kentucky should secede, Captain Oakes said that it was useless for himself to undertake the movement alone, as he had only seven days' rations, and some of the posts farther north were already in the possession of the State troops, having been surrendered before he received the order of exercises. He accordingly started from Ft. Inge on the 19th of March, '61, and marched his command to Green Lake, where he was again compelled to avail himself of the sick-leave of absence. He then returned to San Antonio to await the arrival of the last troops before leaving the State, and while there learned that it was intended to capture the infantry under the command of Col. Reeve, in violation of the agreement made with the insurgents. Although in feeble health, he volunteered to take his old guide and travel across the country until he met Col. Reeve beyond Fort Clark and turn him back, to leave the State by the way of the El Paso and Santa Fé roads. But the department commander, relying upon the good faith of the insurgents, and perhaps afraid to trust any person because so many were deceiving him, declined the offer, and the result was that the entire command was captured and paroled, and five days after making this offer the department commander and all his staff were in the power of the insurgents. He was then intrusted with dispatches, and made his way out of the State by the way of Austin, Brenham and Galveston, and escaped capture. He relinquished his sick-leave in May and proceeded to Wheeling, Va., where he served on mustering duty until Sept., when he rejoined the regiment at Washington until Jan. 14, '62. Joined 4th Cav.—then serving with the Army of the Ohio—and commanded it during the Tennessee and Mississippi campaign. He was transferred with his regiment in Sept., '62, to the Army of the Mississippi, and assigned to mustering and disbursing duty at Jackson, Mich., where he served until April 29, '63, when he was appointed assistant provost-marshal-general for Illinois, and was stationed at Springfield until Sept., '66. He was, at the same time, mustering and disbursing officer and superintendent of the volunteer recruiting service for the State. Joined 6th Cav. at Austin, Texas, on the 1st of Feb., '67; served with it in Texas, the Indian Territory, Kansas and Arizona, and had stations at Austin and at Forts Richardson, Riley, Hays and Lowell, and performed the duties pertaining to a post and regimental commander until April 29, '79, when he was retired from active service, at his own request, having served over thirty years. Staff positions occupied—On the Staff of Col. Harney at the battle of Cerro Gordo; Acting Adjt. 2d Dragoons April, '47, to Oct. 30, '47; Reg. Q. M. 2d Dragoons Oct. 30, '47, to Aug. 15, '49. Battles, skirmishes, etc.—Engaged in the Chihuahua Expedition, the siege of Vera Cruz, the skirmish at Medelin, the battles of Cerro Gordo, Contreras, Churubusco, Molino del Rey and the operations before and capture of the city of Mexico; engaged in two combats with Comanche Indians July 11 and Aug. 12, '50; three engagements with hostile Indians Aug. 30, '56; with the Army of the Ohio during the Tenn. and Miss. campaign, and participated in the movement on Nashville, the March to Pittsburgh Landing, the battle of Shiloh, and the advance on and siege of Corinth; in the Army of the Miss. and engaged in the battle of Corinth. Commands held—Ft. Clark Aug., '56, to May, '58; 5th Cav. at Washington from Sept., '61, to Jan. 14, '62; 4th Cav. during Tenn. and Miss. campaign; Dist. of Ill. from Sept., '65, to Aug., '66; Post and regimental commander at Fts. Upon the disbandment of the expedition at Fort Robinson, Neb., in Oct., he was assigned to Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., where he had station until Jan., '78, and was engaged in the Wind River expedition against the Nez Percés during Sept. and Oct., '77, and in the capture of disaffected Bannock Indians at Ross Fork (Idaho) Agency in Jan., '78; at Fort Fred. Steele, Wyo., until March; on leave of absence until June; then rejoined his company and served with a batt. of the regiment in Northern Wyoming until Dec.; soon thereafter availed himself of a sick-leave of absence until July, '79, when he conducted a detachment of recruits to Cheyenne, and rejoined his company at Fort D. A. Russell, August 28. He was ordered in Sept. to field service against the disaffected Utes of Colorado, and, joining Major Thornburgh's command at Fort Fred. Steele, participated in the march towards the agency on White River, during which occurred the memorable action and subsequent bloody siege at Mill Creek, Col., 29th of Sept. to 5th of Oct., '79, where he exercised the command (being twice wounded) after the death of Major Thornburgh, who fell early in the engagement, and until the arrival, five days thereafter, of Captain Dodge, 9th Cav. The occasion was one demanding the exercise of the highest qualities an officer can possess, and his conduct during the prolonged defense, under the most disheartening circumstances, was beyond praise. He was thanked and complimented in orders, letters and reports of Generals Sherman, Sheridan and Cook for distinguished services, and also received the thanks, by joint resolution, of the 6th Legislative Assembly of Wyoming Territory for his bravery, heroic conduct and efficient services during the engagement and subsequent siege. He returned to duty with his company at Fort D. A. Russell on the 29th of Nov., and in Jan., '80, was summoned to Washington to testify before a Congressional committee concerning the causes which led to the Ute outbreak. He returned to his station in Feb., where he served until April, when he was transferred to Fort Niobrara, in Northern Nebraska, where he served as a company, and at times as a post, commander until August 10. '82, when he proceeded to Fort D. A. Russell, where he had station until Nov. 12, '82, when he was transferred to Fort Sidney, Neb. July 23, '83, he was transferred with his troop to Fort Robinson, Neb.; on sick leave of absence from July 8, '84, to June 9, '85; on field duty in Southwestern Kansas until August 31; at Fort Riley, Kan., when ordered before retiring board, which gave him leave of absence until retired.

June 27, '62, gallant and meritorious conduct at the battle of Chickahominy, Va. History—Son of Capt. John Porter, of the U. S.

Navy, and nephew of Com. David Porter, of "Essex" renown. He received his initial instruction at the school of Benj. Hallowell, Alexandria, Va. His education was continued at the well-known Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., and he prepared for the Mil. Academy at West Point by a course of study at the school of Stephen M. Weld, at Jamaica Plains, Mass., in '45; at West Point as an assistant in the Dep. of Art. and Cav., and engaged in instructing the cadets during encampment, and was later sent to join his regiment at Fort Monroe. In July, '46, joined the army operating against Mexico at Port Isabel, Texas, and saw active service at Saltillo in the same year. In Jan., '47, he embarked at Brazos and accompanied Gen. Scott's army, performing more or less conspicuous service during the siege of Vera Cruz and the battles of Cerro Gordo, Contreras, Molino del Rey, and at the siege of Chapultepec and the capture of Mexico. At Contreras Porter's company recaptured two guns belonging to his regiment which had been taken at Buena Vista. Gen. Scott then mounted the company. At the last action during the war—the sanguinary fight at the capture of the Garita of Belen—Porter was wounded, while the other two officers of his company were killed, and 27 out of 30 non-com. officers and privates were killed or wounded. In '49 was assigned to duty at the Mil. Acad., where he remained until '55. Here he occupied the positions, successively, of Asst. Inst. of Nat. and Exp. Phil., Asst. Ins. of Art., Adj. of the Mil. Acad., and, finally, Ins. of Art. and Cav. In Kansas and served during the Kansas troubles. In '57, while on duty at the headquarters of the army in N. Y. City, Porter was assigned to duty on the staff of Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston, and accompanied that officer to Utah, enduring with him the hardships and annoyances of that campaign in the Rocky Mountains, and of two years' residence among the resentful and murderous Mormons. On one occasion during this campaign, while at Salt Lake City, it fell to Major Porter to exercise an act of discretion which doubtless prevented a bloody riot. A sergeant in the U. S. army was brutally murdered by a Mormon in the public streets. There were nearly a thousand Gentiles in the city, who were roused by the act to the highest pitch of resentment, and it needed but a word from Major Porter, who was in command, to have at once brought about reprisals. Recognizing the importance of his attitude, however, Porter refrained from any word or act that might have given occasion for retaliation, and the danger was avoided. His private reports to Gen. Scott of this and other Mormon outrages were sent by the latter to the government, indorsed as follows, in his own handwriting:

"This is a private letter from Johnston's Chief of Staff, but very interesting. I wish the Secretary of War may find time to read and return it. . . . This familiar letter, written in the freedom of friendship, is full of information and encouragement. Asking the Secretary's indulgence towards the capital soldier, the writer—gallant, intelligent and frank—the Department cannot fail to profit by its perusal, and so may the commander of the Utah reinforcements. WINFIELD SCOTT."

In the autumn of '60 Porter was assigned to duty at the headquarters of the army in N. Y. City as Asst. Insp. Gen., in which capacity, in Nov., he inspected, by order of the War Department, the defenses in Charleston Harbor, and recommended that they should be strengthened and supplied with additional force, ammunition and provisions. As a result of this inspection and of Major Porter's recommendations, Maj. Robert Anderson was placed in command of Ft. Moultrie and carried out the plans recommended by Porter and arranged between them, to, at the proper time, abandon Moultrie and take possession of Sumter. The secession of the Southern States now began, and Major Porter was sent to Texas and to reinforce the garrison at Key West and Dry Tortugas, a task requiring great judgment, patience and tact. He acquitted himself to the satisfaction of his superior officers, and saved to the service a brave and useful force of regular troops which would else have been swallowed up or crippled as all others were by the Confederacy. In April, '61, Porter was on duty in the Adj.-General's office in Washington, when he was chosen by the Sec. of War, Hon. Simon Cameron, and by Gen. Scott, to superintend the protection of the railroad between Baltimore and Harrisburg against Baltimore rioters and maintain communication through Baltimore to Washington. For this purpose he was directed to make use of "any troops to be found in Harrisburg or thereabouts"—these being about 3000 "ninety-days'" volunteers, and 400 regulars from Carlisle Barracks, under Major

George H. Thomas. His exertions in carrying out this important move were so judicious and energetic that he obtained through it the entire confidence of Secretary Cameron and the Governor of Pennsylvania (Curtin), which was never afterwards shaken. The failure to reopen communication with Washington was alone prevented by the President ordering him to withdraw the troops from the vicinity of Baltimore and send them to Washington via Philadelphia and Annapolis. It was at this time that, having been shown telegrams from Hon. Frank P. Blair which had been sent to Governor Curtin, and which asked for permission to muster in troops for the protection of Missouri, communications with Washington being then interrupted, Porter took upon himself the responsibility of replying to the telegrams in the name of the Secretary of War, and of giving the necessary authorization. This act was afterwards approved by the War Department, and General Blair personally thanked him for the interposition, "which saved Missouri to the Union." Porter's duty at this period included the organizing three-months' volunteers in Pennsylvania to protect the country north of the Potomac, and for this purpose he was assigned to the staff of Gen. Robert Patterson, then commanding the Dept. of Pennsylvania. Many of the organizations which he then effected afterwards became the nucleus of the celebrated "Army of the Potomac." Until Aug., '61, he served with this army in the field, under Gen. Patterson and his successor, Gen. Banks. In recognition of his services Major Porter was now appointed, by the Secretary of War, Colonel of the Fifteenth Inf., and soon afterwards Brig.-Gen. of Vols., and was assigned to duty in Washington to organize regiments into brigades and assign them to divisions. Gen. Porter was next assigned to Fort Corcoran to relieve Gen. William T. Sherman, transferred to command in the West. Here he organized a division which soon obtained a high reputation as a model for the discipline and drill of its members. In the spring of '62 General Porter was assigned with his division to Heintzelman's corps, and ordered to the Peninsula. He was appointed Governor of the Siege of Yorktown, and after the surrender of that stronghold received, with the sanction of the President, the command of the Fifth Army Corps, composed of his own divisien (subsequently Morell's), Sykes' division of regulars and volunteers, and Hunt's reserve artillery, and subsequently McCall's division of Penn. volunteers. With this corps he fought the battles of New Bridge, Hanover Court-house, Mechanicsville, Gaines' Mill, Turkey Bridge and Malvern. For meritorious services in this campaign Gen. Porter was, without solicitation, brevetted a Brig.-Gen. in the regular army and appointed a Maj.-Gen. of Vol. From the Peninsula Gen. Porter was transferred with his corps to Northern Virginia. While marching to Fort Monroe, whence he was to embark for Aquia Creek, he was ordered to stop at Williamsburg till all the army should pass him, when he would become the rear-guard. Becoming reliably informed that Lee was hastening to crush Pope before he could be reinforced by the Army of the Potomac, Porter resumed the responsibility and continued his march, and thereby joined Pope at least four days earlier than if he had complied with orders. This deviation from orders was at first condemned, but when informed of the reason was highly approved by the commander of the Army of the Potomac. He served under Gen. Pope for several days at the close of his remarkable campaign, fighting under him the memorable second battle of Bull Run. He was then assigned to command on the west bank of the Potomac in order to secure the defenses of Washington, his lines extending from Ft. Corcoran to Hunting Creek.

The purpose of this order having been achieved, Gen. Porter was directed to rejoin the Army of the Potomac, then under the command of Gen. McClellan, moving against Lee in Maryland. As a special proof of the confidence placed in him, Gen. Porter was directed by the Sec. of War (Stanton) and the Gen.-in-Chief (Halleck) to select a division of 12,000 men from among several divisions, and of a commander from among twenty general officers, and add them to his corps. At Antietam Gen. Porter commanded the centre of the line of battle, with those troops not in action, protecting the supply-trains of the whole army gathered behind it. He sent to the assistance of other corps a large part of his command not otherwise employed in the battle. He was prompt in following the enemy in his retreat into Virginia, and with his corps alone fought the battle of Shepherdstown, capturing four guns, two of which had been lost at the first battle of Bull Run by one of his brigade commanders, Gen. Griffin. Porter continued in command of this corps until Nov., '62, when, without any reason being assigned, he was relieved in the presence of the enemy. This was on Nov. 12, and Gen. McClellan had been removed from the command of the Army of the Potomac on the 5th. Soon after his arrival in Washington an order was issued from the War Department directing the formation of a Military Commission to examine into charges which had been preferred against him by Gen. Pope. This order was afterwards revoked and a court-martial ordered. On Nov. 25 Gen. Porter was placed under arrest, without the nature of the charges made by Gen. Pope being communicated to him, though he immediately made a request that this should be done. It was not until Dec. 1 that the accused knew with what offense he had been charged, though the court-martial met on Nov. 27, and not under the order of the President, as required by law, but that of the Gen.-in-Chief, Maj. Gen. Halleck.* The proceedings instituted by Pope were the most indefensible and the most indecent ever submitted by our Government to the judgment of a court. The court-martial found Gen. Porter guilty of the charges preferred against him, and he was dismissed from the United States Army Jan. 27, '63. To use Gen. Porter's own words, he was "convicted of wilfully refusing to obey orders; of refraining from giving battle in aid of my brother soldiers; of neglecting to aid in achieving a success, the failure to gain which caused the loss of the lives of thousands of men, with woful disaster to my country." For fifteen years Gen. Porter languished under the stigma of the infamy attached to such a verdict. Then, on the 20th of June, '78, a Board of Officers, convened by order of President Hayes, after repeated applications had been made to the Government, met, "to examine, in connection with the record of the trial by court-martial of Major Gen. Porter, such new evidence relating to the merits of said case as is now on file in the War Department, together with such other evidence as may be presented to said Board, and to report, with the reasons for their conclusions, what action, if any, in their opinion, justice requires should be taken by the President." This Board, or Military Commission, consisting of Gens. Schofield, Terry and Getty, after a patient and thorough examination of all attainable evidence, and after most elaborate arguments on both sides by counsel of exceptional learning and acuteness, rendered a decision showing the errors which led to the conviction of Porter, and completely vindicating him from all the charges. In this decision they say: "Porter's faithful, subordinate and intelligent conduct that afternoon (August 29) saved the Union army from the defeat which would otherwise have resulted that day from the enemy's more speedy concentration. . . . Porter had understood and appreciated the military situation, and so far as he had acted upon his own judgment his action had been wise and judicious." Further, in just criticism of the verdict of the court-martial, the Board of Officers say: "These charges and specifications certainly bear no discernible resemblance to the facts of the case as now established." A bill authorizing the President to restore him to his rank was continuously defeated until, in 1885, it finally passed both houses and was vetoed by President Arthur, on the ground that Congress was without constitutional authority to pass such a bill. Following is the bill in question, entitled "A bill for the Relief of Fitz-John Porter":

"Whereas, The board of Army officers convened by the President of the United States by special orders numbered seventy-eight, headquarters of the Army, April twelfth, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, to examine into and report upon the case of Fitz-John Porter, late a major-general of the United States volunteers and a brevet brigadier-general and colonel of the Army, having, by their report of March nineteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, stated that, in their opinion, 'justice requires at his [the President's] hands such action as may be necessary to annul and set aside the findings and sentence of the court-martial in the case of Major-General Fitz-John Porter, and to restore him to the positions of which that sentence deprived him, such restoration to take effect from the date of dismissal from the service;' and

"Whereas, The President, on the fourth day of May, eighteen hundred and eighty-two, remitted so much of the sentence of said court-martial remaining unexecuted as 'forever disqualified the said Fitz-John Porter from holding any office of trust or profit under the Government of the United States:' Therefore, that justice may be done the said Fitz-John Porter, and to carry into effect the recommendation of said board—

* See "Records of the Rebellion," series i., vol. xii., part ii.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the President be, and he is hereby, authorized to nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint Fitz-John Porter, late a Major General of the United States Volunteers and a Brevet Brigadier General and Colonel of the Army, to the position of Colonel in the Army of the United States, of the same grade and rank held by him at the time of his dismissal from the Army by sentence of court-martial promulgated January twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, and, in his discretion, to place him on the retired list of the Army as of that grade, the retired list being thereby increased in number to that extent; and all laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are suspended for this purpose only: Provided, That said Fitz-John Porter shall receive no pay, compensation or allowance whatsoever prior to his appointment under this act."

This act left General Porter completely vindicated both by the Military Commission and by the Congress of the United States. From the date of the order promulgating Porter's sentence (Jan. 27, '63) to the spring of '64 he was virtually without business or professional occupation. In 1864 he went to Colorado in the interest of a mining company, but the injury occasioned by the verdict against him followed him there, and a bill was even introduced into the Legislature of the Territory requiring his expulsion therefrom. During the next few years Porter was a member of the firm of Randolph Brothers in New York, Hon. Theodore F. Randolph, of New Jersey, remaining his firm friend through evil as through good repute. He was next put in charge of the construction, at Morristown, N. J., of an asylum for the insane, on which was expended two and a half millions of dollars under his superintendence. He was appointed Commissioner of Public Works in the city of New York to fill an unexpired term, and a year later was nominated for the full term, but defeated in the Board of Aldermen on political grounds. He was next made Assistant Receiver to the Central Railroad of New Jersey, which office he held until 1882, when, the necessity for the position having ceased to exist, he resigned. In 1884 General Porter was appointed one of the Police Commissioners of New York, which office he held till May, 1888 when, on expiration of his term, he was appointed Fire Commissioner. He retired to private life May, 1889, and is a resident of New York City. In 1869 the Khedive of Egypt offered to General Porter the position of commander of his army, with the rank of Major-General. This brilliant offer General Porter declined, preferring to remain in his own country to secure, in time, the vindication he knew he deserved. He recommended for the position General Charles P. Stone, who accepted service in the Egyptian army. The case of Fitz-John Porter stands alone in the annals of our military history. Numerous appeals to reopen the case were addressed to the President by ex-Presidents Franklin Pierce and Millard Fillmore, Senators Wilson, Lafayette F. S. Foster, John Sherman, Ira Harris, William Wright, and Edward Everett, Robert C. Winthrop, Amos A. Lawrence, Gardner Howland Shaw, General Banks, Governor Curtin, Horace Greeley, and others. Petitions flowed in, signed by hundreds of officers of his old Fifth Corps and other corps of the Army of the Potomac, all urging, in the name of truth and justice, a rehearing; and to these were joined the memorials for the same purpose from the Legislatures of N. H., N. J., Pennsylvania and Nevada, and from members of the Legislature and citizens of Minnesota, without distinction of party. The sudden death of President Lincoln prevented the fulfillment of his expressed intention to reopen the case. President Johnson's promise to grant a rehearing was not fulfilled only because of General Grant's sudden change of mind to opposition, and because Porter did not desire it without Grant's recommendation. President Hayes, having before him the appeal and statement of facts from Hon. John Tucker, Assistant Secretary of War during the trial, on the earnest and persistent appeals of Senator Randolph, of New Jersey, and against the pressure of politicians, convened the Schofield-Terry-Getty Advisory Board, by the judgment of which, sustained by acts of Congress and despite the veto of President Arthur, Porter stands before his countrymen completely and triumphantly exonerated morally, if not legally, of all that has been alleged against him. And this, too, independent of party, by the united action of all Democratic members of the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives, and of the voice and vote of Republican Senators Sewell, Hoar, Cameron of Pennsylvania, Jones of Nevada, Sabin and Pike, and Representatives Phelps, Ray of N. Y., Ray of New Hampshire, Bayne, Lyman, Burleigh, Laird, Ranney, Bedford, Rice,

Rockwell, A. H. Smith, O'Hara, Howey, Haynes, Long and others. But the most marked among Republican acts in the case is the change of mind of General Grant, the honored of his country and trusted leader of the Republican Party. In September, 1879, Porter asked of General Grant on what ground he had expressed certain opinions in support of the justice of his sentence. He received assurance from Grant that though he never studied the case thoroughly, he deemed it just to himself as well as to Porter to investigate it then, and if wrong in opinion, entertained and possibly expressed, he would be glad of the opportunity to revoke it and to express his conclusions in writing prior to the meeting of Congress on Dec. 2d. That date was fixed by Porter, as he said on his conclusions would depend whether he appealed for justice to Congress direct or through the President. During a patient and earnest study of the case running up to Dec. 19th, General Grant, under date of Dec. 9th, wrote to Porter, who was disturbed by the delay: "I can say now, from what I have read, I believe I have heretofore done you a great injustice both in thought and speech; and if of the same opinion when through the examination of your case, I will regard it a most solemn obligation on my part to correct the wrong so far as I have any responsibility for it." On Dec. 19th he wrote: "I am through reading the papers in your case. I have seen nothing to change the views I have already expressed to you." He expressed those views in a letter addressed to the President under date of Dec. 23d, which he sent to Porter with the assurance that "I expect to follow it up by such course as circumstances hereafter may dictate as necessary and proper. I sincerely hope that the day is not far distant when you will receive the justice which I feel sure is due to you." That truth and justice were higher and mightier aims to General Grant in this decision than political expediency and personal preference is made manifest in the following letter written to a friend—a U. S. Senator who had inquired the grounds on which he had taken action in Porter's behalf:

NEW YORK, December 30, 1881.

My Dear General: I have your letter of yesterday. It is true that I have re-examined the proceedings of the Court Martial and Court of Inquiry in Fitz-John Porter's case, and believe sincerely that I have done him an injustice, and have so written to the President. When I gave General Porter the letter I requested him to send you a copy. If he has not done so, he will or I will. That letter will explain all that I would otherwise write you on the subject. I reluctantly came to the conclusion I did, but was convinced beyond all preconceived notions, and felt it due to an accused man to say so.

Very truly yours,
U. S. GRANT.

GEN. JOHN A. LOGAN.

The Comte de Paris, on satisfying himself that the pages in his history which recounted the facts involving the case of General Porter had done the latter an injustice, hastened to correct them, and ranged himself on the side of the accused. A determination not to rest or be silent until justice was done him, combined with the stanch fidelity of friends who were loyal to him by reason of conviction of his innocence, has enabled General Porter to live down the vile accusations of his enemies, and to accomplish almost entirely his cherished purpose of restoring himself to his proper position in the esteem of his countrymen. It remains only for an upright government to complete its share of this great moral purpose. An act of Congress (the same as that vetoed by President Arthur) was approved by President Cleveland, July, 1886. Porter was reappointed Colonel in the Army, his commission dating May 14, 1861. Thus his record of former service was counted and the records of the Court Martial annulled and set aside.

Potter, Reuben M. (Captain U. S. A.). Born in N. J. Feb. 14, 1802. Retired; appointed from Texas—Civil life. Actual rank—M. Sk. Qm. Dept. March 23, '48; accepted April 1, '48; Capt. M. Sk. July 28, '66; retired June 30, '82, by operation of law. Service—Assigned soon after to duty in the Quartermaster-General's office; in May, '50, he was assigned to the charge of the depot of army clothing and equipage at New Orleans; in April, '51, he was ordered by the Quartermaster-General to accompany Bvt. Brig.-Gen. Whiting, asst. Quartermaster-Gen., on a tour of inspection to the several posts of Texas; when the inspection was concluded the military storekeeper, after a two months' leave of absence, returned to New Orleans in Nov., '51, and resumed the charge of the depot of clothing and equipage; in May, '53, he was assigned to the charge of the clothing and equipage arsenal on Schuylkill, at Philadelphia, and took the accountability of the same on the 1st of July following, and continued in that charge till Dec., '57, when he was ordered to San Antonio, Texas, where he took the accountability of the depot of clothing and equipage in March, '58, and continued in that charge till Jan. or Feb., '61, when the place was occupied and the public property seized by a rebel force under Gen. Ben McCulloch. It may be a coincidence of civil war worthy of note that on this occasion the military storekeeper was relieved of accountability by force of arms in the hand of an old friend, who was one of his own sureties, for McCulloch's name at that time figured on Potter's bond. The latter was subsequently arrested, and released under parole, along with the other officers of that post; he reported at Washington in May, '61, and in July following was assigned to the accountability of a new and extensive depot of army cloth and equipage in New York City, in charge of which he continued till Dec., '66; while in this position he received, with the rest of his class, the effective rank of captain, by virtue of the act of July 28, '66; in the fall of '66 he requested that he should be relieved that he might settle his voluminous accounts; he was relieved accordingly, and the duty of adjusting his accountability occupied about a year, for the property which had rolled in and out of his charge under the confusing pressure of war necessity amounted in value to $120,000,000; awaiting orders till June, '69, when he was assigned to duty as acting assistant quartermaster at Pittsburgh, Pa., where he remained till June, '73, when he was assigned to Fort Wood, N. Y. H., as post quartermaster; he remained in that position till July 19, '75, when he was placed on sick-leave, and continued thereon till retired, on the 30th of June, '82, by virtue of the act of that date.

Lincoln, N. D. History—On April 16, '61, the day that the first gun was fired upon Fort Sumter in Charleston harbor, at the commencement of the War of the Rebellion, Co. E, 4th Batt. D. C. Militia, held a meeting in Washington City and resolved to offer its services to the General Government for the protection of the public buildings and archives therein. Accordingly, the organization presented itself at the War Department the following morning at ten o'clock; but the members were informed that their services could not be accepted unless they were mustered into the U. S. service for three months. This was a serious occasion, for nearly all the young men had business plans and expectations which would be ruined by an absence of three months. They were given ten minutes to decide. Arms were stacked, and a consultation ensued. It was well-known among the members that there were secret organizations drilling every night in the city, whose intentions were to seize the public buildings and turn them, with archives and money, over to the Confederacy at the first practicable moment. (See article of Gen. C. P. Stone in vol. i., "Battles and Leaders of the Civil War.") Under these circumstances it did not take the company long to decide; and when time was up, the entire organization, with the exception of two men, was mustered into the service, and the first duty assigned to it was the guarding of the State Department and the U. S. Treasury. Up to the present time the government has failed to recognize the services of the D. C. militia by bounty or otherwise. He has published several works,—"The History of the Fourth U. S. Inf." (1871), "Tactical Queries" (1882), "Records of Living Officers U. S. Army" (1890).

HEADQUARTERS EIGHTH U. S. INFANTRY,
DAVID'S ISLAND, NEW YORK HARBOR, January 27, 1871.

ORDERS No. 11.

Extract.

II. The Colonel commanding desires to express his commendation of the conduct of Second Lieutenant P. H. Ray, and Sergeant Hill, Company E, and Privates Welch, Company B; Pope, Company E; Dugan, Company H; and Breckenridge and Jones First, Company I, 8th Infantry, who periled their lives in the fearful storm of yesterday, to save the lives of two citizens, discovered helplessly drifting in the vicinity of this island, and who, notwithstanding their inability to return without assistance, knowing none could be afforded at the time, still persevered and succeeded in the object for which they had endangered their lives.

To First Lieutenants A. W. Corliss and Samuel Craig, Second Lieutenants C. A. Earnest and J. W. Summerhause, Sergeant Snyder, Company H, Corporal Lasher and Privates Coyne and Steinman, Company B, and Fernald, Company I, 8th Infantry, who in their voluntary efforts rescued Lieutenant Ray and his almost frozen crew from their perilous condition this morning, as well as to all herein mentioned, the greatest praise is due for their generous daring and fidelity to the honor of their profession.

Reade, Philip (Captain 3d Inf.). Born in Lowell, Mass., Oct. 13, 1844. Retiring year 1908. Appointed from Mass. Cadet at the U. S. Mil. Academy from July 1, '64, to Jan. 14, '65, and from June 20, '65, to Jan. 21, '67; appointed from civil life. Actual rank—2d Lieut. 3d U. S. Inf. May 13, '67; accepted May 20, '67; 1st Lieut. Dec. 8, '78; Capt. Nov. 13, '89. Service—Reported for duty at headquarters of his regiment, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., June, '67, and ordered to his company at Fort Dodge, Kan.; took command of Co. H, July, '67; on duty there and at various points in Colorado and Indian Territory until fall of '71, when changed station with his company to Fort Wallace, Kan.; during this period was on escort duty with wagon trains, Southern Overland Mail Co., stage stations, Railroad surveying parties and in connection with hostile Cheyenne and Kiowa Indians; at Regimental Hdqrs. from June, '69, to March 12, '71; on leave of absence from Nov., '71, to April 4, '72; on latter-named date assigned to duty at Headquarters Dep. of the Mo., Fort Leavenworth, Kan., as Acting Signal Officer; relieved from duty as Chief Signal Officer Dep. of the Missouri Aug. 27, '74; during the period April 4, '72, to Aug. 27, '74, was engaged in giving instruction in military signaling and telegraphy to classes composed of officers and enlisted men at the following-named posts: Forts Leavenworth, Riley, Larned, Dodge, Hays and Wallace, and camps of the 6th U. S. Cavalry in Kansas; also at Camp Supply, I. T., at Forts Lyon, Reynolds and Garland, Col., and at Forts Union, Marcy, Stanton, McRae, Selden, Craig, Bayard, Tulerosa and Wingate, N. M.; Oct. 18, '74, was relieved as a member of a Gen. Court Mar., on which he had been temporarily detailed at Fort Leavenworth, and ordered to proceed to Jackson Barracks, New Orleans, La., for duty with his company ("H"); Dec. 1, '74, he was ordered to report in person to the Chief Signal Officer for duty, but was permitted, at his own request, to delay in New Orleans until after it was evident that no active services would be required of his regiment in the South incident to the then-troubled condition of state and local affairs in Louisiana; Jan. 8, '75, assigned to instruction duty at Fort Whipple, Va., as Assistant to the Chief Signal Officer of the Army and for orders relative to his instruction in more extended branches of military signaling, electric telegraphy, heliographing, cipher and meteorology; June 2, '75, was relieved from duty at Fort Whipple, Va., and directed to proceed to San Diego, Cal., and assume charge of the construction and operation of the lines of telegraph in California, Arizona and New Mexico, provided for by acts of Congress, he to establish his office and station in San Diego, Cal., and be governed in the discharge of his duties by such instructions as he might receive from the Chief Signal Officer of the army; after about 400 miles of the New Mexican military telegraph line had been constructed and was in working order, he was relieved from duty in connection with the New Mexican section of the proposed entire line, and its further completion in New Mexico devolved upon another officer March 29, '76, and he was ordered to Washington for verbal consultation with General Myer; for the two years succeeding April, '76, he was engaged in like duty in Arizona; Feb. 28, '78, he was relieved from the charge of the completed line of military telegraph then stretching from San Diego, Cal., to the capital of New Mexico, and was given a leave of absence until Nov. 13, '78, on which date he reported for duty at Fort Whipple, Arlington Heights, Va., now called Fort Myer; Jan. 4, '79, he was ordered to proceed to Cape Henry, Va., and construct a telephone line connecting the signal office at that place with Kittyhawk on the coast of North Carolina and all intermediate stations of the Life-saving Service; he spent some wintry weeks on the sandsprit separating Currituck, Albemarle and Pamlico Sounds from the Atlantic; he was engaged in the joint duty of constructing a telephone line and in teaching the men of the Life-saving Service military methods in signaling; after the completion of this duty he was ordered, April 8, '79, to Forts Fetterman and McKinney, Wyo., to render any assistance needed in the completion, management, etc., of the telegraph line and to make the necessary arrangements with the Commanding General Department of the Platte; Oct. 4, '79, the Com. Gen. Dep. of the Missouri made application for the detail of Lieut. Reade to that department for the stated purpose of assuming general supervision of the Government telegraph lines connecting those headquarters with the military posts in the Indian country, Colorado and New Mexico; so ordered, and on Oct. 20 he was assigned to signal duty at headquarters Dep. of the Missouri, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; continued on duty in that connection until Feb. 14, '81, on which date he received leave of absence for six months on surgeon's certificate of disability; this was further extended on July 30; relieved from duty in the Signal Service May 1, '81, and joined his Co. ("H," 3d Inf.) at Fort Missoula, Mont., Sept. 30 of that year; at Fort Missoula, Mont., until Sept., when he was transferred to Fort Shaw, Mont.; he qualified as marksman in 1882–9, and performed the duties of Adjutant of the regiment for the four months succeeding Nov. 30, '83; he also qualified as sharpshooter in '84–6 and in '87–9; July 9, '85, he was detailed for duty on the Dep. of Dakota Rifle Range in connection with the annual rifle competition of selected marksmen, and continued on duty at the Fort Snelling Rifle Range until Sept. 11, '85; on leave of absence Dec. 11, '85; returned to Fort Snelling, Minn., March 2, '86, on which date was assigned to temporary court-martial duty at Fort Snelling; was relieved June 3, '86, when he reported back to the station of his Co., Fort Shaw, Mont.; July 20, '86, he was selected for duty as Range Officer in connection with the Dep. of Dakota rifle competition; August 2, '86, Lieut. Reade was directed to report in person at Headquarters Division of the Missouri, Chicago, Ill., with a view to assignment to duty on Major General Terry's Staff as Inspector of Rifle Practice of the Division; this assignment was officially made August 10, '86, and he conducted the 6th annual division rifle competition at Fort Leavenworth; executive range officer 3d biennial competition of the army team Sept. 24 to Oct. 1, '85; inspected the 6th annual rifle competition Dept. of Texas, Aug., '86; inspected Bellevue Rifle Range, Neb., Oct., '86; conducted 7th annual contest for places on the Division Rifle team at Bellevue, Neb., Sept., '87; inspected the Dakota and Platte rifle competitions at Fort Snelling, Minn., and Bellevue, Aug., '87; in charge of the 8th annual division contest at San Antonio, Tex., and in charge of special contest to determine the division quota and alternate Sept., '88; ordered to witness the fourth biennial competition of the army team at Fort Niagara, N. Y., Sept., '88; inspected the 8th annual rifle competitions of the Dept. of Dakota at Fort Snelling, Dept. of the Mo., at Fort Leavenworth, and the Dept. of the Platte, July and Aug., '88; officer in charge of the 9th annual competition for places on the division team, Sept., '89; also superintended and gave instructions to the Wisconsin National Guard in rifle practice '87–9; on duty at Chicago to present time. Honorably mentioned—Honorably mentioned in various orders; also by officials of State and town authorities; by the National Guard of Wisconsin and Ill., etc., all too numerous to be mentioned here; two only are here quoted:

In communication dated February 28, '76, Honorables Samuel B. Axtell, then Governor of New Mexico, and W. G. Ritch, Secretary of New Mexico, wrote to the officer of the Military Telegraph Line as follows:

"We desire to express to Lieutenant Reade, both for ourselves and also for the people of this Territory, our sincere thanks for the efficient manner in which he has, within the last year, performed the important work of constructing from Santa Fé, to a point near Fort Bowie, Arizona Territory, the first Military Telegraph Line through our Territory. We did not believe it possible when he first came here, and, with only one assistant, a sergeant in the army, undertook so vital and substantial a work for the public welfare, that he could instruct a hundred raw recruits of the 15th U. S. Infantry, turned over to him by General Pope, in the use of linemen's tools, construction appliances, electrical instruments, etc., etc. He has labored night and day. He has had vexations, trials, dangers, and has played a conspicuous part in this old, young territory. He is inseparably connected with its development. If his ambition had pointed that way, he could have been elected our delegate to Congress without opposition. To procure and haul poles in our sparsely-wooded country to the places where they were needed to support the wire, has been a great task. Four of these poles frequently weigh a ton. We personally know of enormous distances, sometimes over 100 miles, that Lieutenant Reade has had to drag these poles through mountain defiles and over arid deserts. His work has been impeded by covetousness, ignorance, superstition and menace. Especial credit is due him in that he has not had skilled experts to supervise and assist him. He has taught a force of three young Lieutenants and a hundred enlisted men just what was essential, and the labor and the result redounds to the credit of the U. S. Army through Lieutenant Reade as its representative who has toiled to complete this national enterprise."

Many complimentary resolutions from localities, institutions and officials in New Mexico were also filed in the War Department concerning Lieut. Reade. Included in these is a formal vote of thanks from the Territorial Legislature.

The appreciation of Gov. Jeremiah Rusk, then the Executive of Wisconsin, of the value of the instructions given by Captain Reade was attested to in a communication addressed to Assistant Adjutant General R. Williams, Headquarters Div. of Missouri, dated Madison, April 9, 1888. The following is a copy:

STATE OF WISCONSIN, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
MADISON, April 9, 1888.

GEN. R. WILLIAMS, Assistant Adjutant General, Headquarters Division of Missouri.

Sir: Through the interest and courtesy of Major-General Terry, the National Guard of this State has been able to receive valued lectures and practical instructions from Lieut. Philip Reade, 3d Infantry, U. S. A., Inspector of Rifle Practice. I have the honor to forward this day copies of the "Proceedings of the Sixth and Seventh Annual Conventions of the Officers of the Wisconsin National Guard," that the General Commanding may see with what earnest appreciation and soldierly profit the troops of this State have availed themselves of the lessons given by this accomplished officer. I trust that it may not be considered inappropriate that I should make further reference to the services rendered by Lieut. Philip Reade. While no words of mine are needed to add to the appreciation in which he is held, I should fall far short of the wishes of both officers and men of the Wisconsin National Guard were I to fail to express our deep obligation for the minute instruction and most intelligent direction he has given to the rifle practice of our State force. Every previous effort, and several vigorous efforts had been made to thoroughly interest our State troops in rifle practice, had proved a failure. That the impulse received from Lieut. Philip Reade has tended to substantial results, I cite the paper of Captain George Graham in the 7th convention report and the G. O. appended thereto showing the work done by the team under Captain Graham's command at Fort Snelling. The instruction of Captain Graham and the men began under Lieut Philip Reade in January, 1887, at our 6th convention; they have had no other assistance. While we trust that in his honored and well-earned retirement General Terry may find renewed health and years of life and happiness, we cannot but regret the departure of a Commander who has so cordially and substantially aided us. In the earnest hope that his distinguished successor will prove as warm a friend of the National Guard and that in the future, as in the past, we may count upon the valued services of Lieut. Philip Reade as an important factor toward increased efficiency, I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant, (Signed) CHANDLER P. CHAPMAN, Adjutant General Wisconsin.

Copy of letter of Major-General Wool:

Headquarters Dept. of Virginia.

Fort Monroe, Va., March 28, 1862.

Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

Sir:—Col. J. C. Robinson, of the 1st. Mich. Regiment, is desirous of the appointment of Brig.-Gen. As the best evidence of his qualifications I would state that he had one of the finest regiments in service. He is in the regular service a Major. I would earnestly commend him to your particular notice and consideration.

I have the honor to be very respectfully your obedient servant,

John E. Wool,
Major General.

This was endorsed by the Maryland Delegation in Congress as follows:

House of Representatives.

March 31, 1862.

Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

Sir:—We cheerfully endorse the recommendation of Gen. Wool in favor of Colonel Robinson, and in so doing we beg to state, it was mainly owing to the determined stand taken by Colonel Robinson during the excitement in Baltimore, that Fort McHenry was retained by the Goverment, and we beg to call the special attention of the Secretary to the facts of that case.

(Signed) Chas. B. Calvert, Edwin H. Webster,
C. L. L. Leavy, Reverdy Johnson.

At the battle of Glendale Genl. Robinson's Brigade repulsed repeated attacks of a superior force. The following is an extract from Genl. Kearny's report:

"I have reserved Genl. Robinson for the last. To him this day is due above all others in this division the honors of this battle. The attack was on his wing. Everywhere present, by personal supervision and noble example he secured to us the honor of victory. . . . Our loss has been severe, and when it is remembered that this occurs to mere skeletons of regiments, there is but one observation to be made, that previous military history presents no such parallel."

Extract from a letter of Major-General G. K. Warren to the Adjt.-Genl. U. S. A., dated April 16, 1866, relating to Spottsylvania C. H.:

"In the flank movement to the left, begun at dark of the 7th of May, the 5th Corps again had the lead, with General Robinson's division in the advance. Delayed as we were by darkness and bad roads, crowded with troops, until it was probable the enemy had anticipated us in reaching the desired point, yet urged by the importance of time to our success, Genl. Robinson marched rapidly on, driving the light troops of the enemy before him, till charging directly the desired position, himself animating the advance by leading in person, he fell dangerously wounded and his command was repulsed by the opposing infantry already arrayed in strong force."

(one year), July 31, '46; retained as 1st Lieut. and Adjt. Santa Fé Batt. August 14, '47; hon. must. out Oct. 20, '48; 1st Lieut. 2d Cav. March 3, '55; accepted March 31, '55; Captain 2d Cav. (5th Cav.) March 21, '61; Major 5th Cav. Dec. 7, '63; Lieut. Col. 3d Cav. Dec. 2, '75; Col. 4th Cav. Nov. 1, '82; retired Oct. 19, '87. Brevet rank—Brevet Major May 27, '62, gallant and meritorious services in the battle of Hanover Court-House, Va.; Lieut. Col. June 13, '62, gallant and meritorious services in the cavalry action at Old Church, Va.; Col. March 13, '65, arduous and faithful services in the recruitment of the armies of the United States. Honorably mentioned—Won a special mention in the official report for gallant conduct in a combat with hostile Comanches May 1, '56; for services in combat with hostile Comanches May 13, '59, he was highly commended for conspicuous gallantry and energy, and won a special mention for particular services in holding the enemy in check until the main command arrived on the scene of action, and in very adroitly capturing their horses, for which, in the language of the report, "great credit is due him;" he was also complimented in orders by Gen. Scott. Service—Reported at Ft. Leavenworth in the summer of '46, and marched with his regiment to Santa Fé and served in New Mexico. On the expiration of the term of service of his regiment it was consolidated into five companies and reorganized as the Santa Fé Battalion; ordered to Missouri on recruiting service; reported at Fort Leavenworth, and in May, '48, started with his detachment for Santa Fé, having in charge Paymaster Bryant (who had eighty thousand dollars with him), a supply train of fifty wagons and 500 head of beef-cattle. When he arrived at Santa Fé the war was ended and the troops were preparing to return home. He was then assigned with the recruits on escort duty to Gen. Sterling Price, and marched with the command to Independence, Mo.; mustered out of service Oct. 20, '48, and returned to civil pursuits. In consideration of his gallant services in the combat on Coon Creek he was commissioned a first lieutenant in the Fifth (old Second) Cavalry, to date from March 3, '55; proceeded to Pittsburgh, Pa., where he served on recruiting service until July, when he joined the regiment at Jefferson Barracks and was assigned to the command of a detachment of Co. C, which he retained until August 24; Sept. 20 was detached to recruiting service at Columbia, Mo.; rejoined at Jefferson Barracks in Oct., and marched with the regiment to Texas, and arrived at Fort Mason Jan. 14, '56, where he had station until June, and participated in an expedition to the head-waters of the Concho; then assigned to recruiting service at Philadelphia until Nov., '58; conducted a detachment of recruits from Carlisle to Texas, and rejoined at Camp Radziminski Dec. 31, '58, and assumed the command of Co. C, which he retained until Feb. 10, '60; changed station to Camp Cooper in June, '59; participated in the Cimarron expedition Oct. to Nov., '59, and changed station in Dec. to Camp Lawson, where he served until May, '60; then transferred to Fort Inge, where he had station (on leave of absence June, '60, to Feb., '61) until March 19, '61, when he marched to Indianola (commanding company) and embarked on the steamship "Empire City" just in time to escape capture, and arrived at Carlisle April 27, '61; in the field '61–2; wounded at action of Old Church, Va., June 13, '62. When he was able to travel he reported at Washington in Oct., '62, for the purpose of joining the regiment, but ordered to Louisville as a mustering and disbursing officer, where he served until March, '64. He was then transferred to the Cavalry Bureau at Washington, where he served until May, when he was appointed superintendent of the Mounted Recruiting Service at Carlisle and commandant of the drafted camp of that district; relieved from duty at Carlisle in April, '66, and ordered to Nashville, Tenn., where he commanded four companies of the regiment until Nov., and performed garrison duty until April, '67; then ordered to North Carolina and instructed to inspect the cavalry serving in the Second Military District. When this duty was completed he was appointed Chief of the Bureau of Civil Affairs, and served in that position from May to August, '67, and prepared the registration books and designated all the registrars of elections in the Carolinas; was relieved at his own request and assigned to the post of Morgantown, where his duties were of a delicate and important nature, involving the execution of the reconstruction acts of Congress in fifteen counties of Western North Carolina; continued in command of the station until August, '68, when he was transferred to Raleigh, and was ordered thence in Sept., with a detachment of the regiment, to frontier service; took the field at Fort Harker, Kan., Oct. 1 with four companies, and commanded in the affair on Prairie Dog Creek, Kan. He relinquished the command to a senior Major on the 23d and was assigned to Fort Riley, where he had station until April, '69, when he marched a detachment of recruits to Fort McPherson, Neb. He served with the Republican River expedition of '69; commanded the expedition from July 30 to August 24; served at Fort McPherson from August 24 to Oct. 15, '69; on leave of absence; joined detachment of regiment at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., Dec. 22, '69, where stationed until March, '72; proceeded to Arizona, and arrived at Camp Grant June 6th; on leave of absence and detached service at San Francisco until March, '73; rejoined at Camp Lowell; remained a few days and proceeded to Camp Grant; arrived March 28th; remained until April 20, when ordered to San Diego and Los Angeles as a member of a board to purchase cavalry horses; continued on that duty until July, when assigned to duty at Hdqrs. Dept. of Cal. as an inspecting officer until July, '74; rejoined at Camp Lowell July 18, and served at that station until May 1, '75, when he marched with the Hdqrs. and six companies, by the way of the Rio Grande, to Fort Lyon, Col., where the command was distributed; on leave of absence June 28; joined at Fort Dodge, Kan., Nov. 23; a few days later was promoted and transferred to Dept. of the Platte; at Fort Sidney, Neb., until Jan., '76; proceeded to Philadelphia, Pa.; served as a member of a board convened by the War Dept. for the purpose of considering questions of general interest in the service, relating to supplies and the best methods of issue; while thus employed Gen. Crook applied for him to command the cavalry during the Sioux campaign of '76; returned to the Dept. and was employed in purchasing horses during April and May, and joined expedition May 18 in the field; upon disbandment of expedition, October 24, was assigned to staff duty at Department Headquarters until September, '82, when he proceeded to Fort Whipple, Arizona Territory. Staff positions occupied—A. A. I. G. Dept. of the Platte from Oct. 24, '76, to Sept., '82. Battles, skirmishes, etc—While serving in New Mexico during the year '47 was engaged in the battle of Cañada, the skirmish of Embudo, and the assault upon and capture of the Puebla de Taos; he was assigned, with Capt. Burgwin, of the 1st Drag., to the duty of charging the fortifications of the Puebla de Taos, where he was distinguished for conspicuous gallantry. When encamped near the junction of Coon Creek and the Arkansas River, between Forts Dodge and Larned, he was attacked at daybreak June 18, '48, by three hundred Comanche warriors; had scarcely time to corral the cattle and secure the horses when the Indians charged through his camp and made repeated efforts to stampede the stock; in these charges nine warriors were killed and many were wounded; the Indians then fled across the river in a southerly direction, when he mounted thirty-four picked men and pursued them four miles in the sand-hills, killing fourteen and having four men severely wounded; he was outnumbered three to one and was encumbered with the supply-train and cattle, but he succeeded in placing on record as creditable a combat with hostile Indians as can be found in the annals of frontier service; was engaged in a combat with hostile Comanches on the 1st of May, and won a special mention in the official report for gallant conduct; he was engaged in the brilliant combat with hostile Comanches on a tributary of the Nescutunga, near Fort Atkinson, May 13, '59; participated in General Patterson's Shenandoah campaign, and was engaged in the action of Falling Waters and the skirmishes near Martinsburg and Bunker Hill; served in the defenses of Washington during the winter of '61–62, and participated in the Virginia Peninsular campaign, and was engaged in the siege of Yorktown, the battle of Williamsburg, and in almost daily skirmishes with the enemy during the advance towards Richmond, the battle of Hanover Court-House and the reconnoissance towards Ashland; he was commanding two squadrons of the regiment on the extreme right of the Army of the Potomac in the vicinity of the Pamunkey River, when he fought the action of Old Church, June 13, '62, and received six sabre wounds while engaged in hand-to-hand conflicts with the enemy; made a stubborn fight, but was overwhelmed by superior numbers, and, although surrounded and grievously wounded, he cut through the enemy and joined the main army; he received two sabre contusions on the right side of the head; a cut two inches long on the forehead; a long cut on the left cheek which bled profusely; a cut on the right wrist, dividing a tendon; and an incised fracture, four inches long, of the left parietal bone. These wounds, attesting the severity of the conflict, disabled him from field service for some years; in the affair on Prairie Dog Creek, Kan., Oct., '68; was engaged (commanding) in the affairs on the Republican River, near Spring Creek, Neb.; in the sand-hills near Frenchman's Fork, Col.; in the sand-hills south of Julesburg, Col.; and in the Niobrara pursuit and (second in command) in the brilliant action at Summit Springs, Col., summer of '69; in the actions on Rose Bud Creek, Mont., and skirmish at Slim Buttes, Dak., '76. Commands held—Det. of Co. C July–Aug., '55; Co. C from Dec. 31, '58, to Feb. 10, '60; Co. on march from Fort Inge to Indianola '61; four Co.'s of regt. at Nashville, Tenn., April to Nov., '66; Regiment in the field '66; Republican River expedition July 30 to Aug. 24, '69; Det. of seven at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., at different periods; Camp Grant, Ariz., from June 6 to July 9, '72; regiment a few days in March, '73; Camp Grant, Ariz., March 28 to April 20, '73; Regiment from July 18, '74, to June 28, '75; Fort Dodge, Kan., Nov. 23 to Dec. 2, '75. History—Was offered in Sept., '62, the colonelcy of the 27th New Jersey Vols., which he was compelled to decline because of his wounds, which incapacitated him for field service, and his sense of justice forbade him to accept the pay of a grade when he was unable to discharge the duties belonging to it; this was a keen disappointment, because it was understood that an appointment of brigadier-general of volunteers would soon follow if he accepted.

Not allowed to accept appointment as Colonel 22d Mass. Vols., as will appear from the following:—

Quartermaster General's Office, Washington, Sept. 27, 1861.

My Dear Captain:—

I beg that you will feel that in advising against your being detailed for the command of the Massachusetts Regiment, so flatteringly offered you, I consult only the interests of the public service, and not my own convenience.

I heard of it on my return from St. Louis. General Sherman, whose expedition is deferred, not abandoned, whose Army is here temporarily only, protests that no man can take your place, and I think that having gone thus far with the preparation of the expedition it would be a serious injury to have you leave it. I, therefore, have let the matter stand, saying that I could not recommend now (as I did before you were engaged in this particular service) your being allowed to leave the Quartermaster's Department to accept higher rank in the Volunteers.

I am sure you will feel that I have done right for you and for the country.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
(Signed) M. C. Meigs,
Quartermaster General.

Capt. Rufus Saxton, U. S. A., New York.

He received the following commendatory letter from the Quartermaster Gen'l:—

Quartermaster General's Office, Washington City, Nov. 16, 1861.

Captain Rufus Saxton,
Chief Quartermaster, Army of the South, Port Royal, S. C.

Captain:—It is very gratifying to me that your chartered vessels have all escaped so well. Some losses of vessels chartered by other parties have occurred, and two steamers purchased by agents of the War Department for keeping up the communication between Fortress Monroe and Hatteras during the winter have proved unable to weather uninjured the gale to which all were exposed.

* * * * * * * * * *

Congratulating you upon the success which has thus far attended the expedition, I am,

Very truly and respectfully, your friend and servant,
M. C. Meigs, Quartermaster General.

Headquarters of the Army,
Adjutant General's Office, Washington, D. C., Jan'y 10, 1862.

Brig. Gen. W. T. Sherman, U. S. V.,
Commanding, etc., Port Royal, S. C.

Sir:—The following is the endorsement of the Quartermaster General on your endorsement of Dec. 16th, in relation to Capt. Saxton, Ass't Quartermaster:—

"The Quartermaster's Department has no more intelligent or zealous officer. I have no one who could be spared to replace him at present.

"If the wishes of officers alone are to govern the department, there are few who will not find temptation, in the high rank attainable in the Volunteer Service, to leave their posts less advantageous in rank than colonelcies of regiments, but more valuable and important to the public service.

"I should rejoice were it possible to give Capt. Saxton higher rank; but I doubt whether it would be possible to put him in a place where he can better serve the country. * * * * * *

(Signed) "M. C. Meigs, Quartermaster General."

I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant, (Signed) L. Thomas, Adjutant General.

1862, Brigadier Gen'l of Volunteers, in Army of the Potomac, and in command of defenses of Harper's Ferry, Va.; for this service he received the following:—

[Letter of thanks from the War Department for defense of Harper's Ferry.]

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON CITY, D. C., June 17, 1862.

To BRIGADIER GENERAL SAXTON.

GENERAL:—The thanks of this Department are cordially tendered to you for your late able and gallant defense of Harper's Ferry against the rebel forces under command of General Jackson.

You were placed in command at that point at a moment of extreme danger, and under circumstances of extraordinary difficulty.

By your gallantry and skill great service was rendered to the country, which I feel it to be the duty of this Department to acknowledge and place on record, assuring you at the same time of my personal confidence and regard.

Yours truly,
(Signed) EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

[Received the following recognition of services from the War-Governor of his native State, John A. Andrew, of Massachusetts:—]

BOSTON, February 15, 1866.

* * * * * * * * * * * * *

GENERAL:—But, more than all, I thank you for the fidelity to liberty and justice, and to every duty, and the zeal and ability which have distinguished your service of the country and mankind, during the Rebellion. Among the sons of Massachusetts, none will leave behind them a more gracious memory, or a more honorable name, than yours.

June 21, '63, gallant and meritorious services in action at Upperville, Va.; Col. July 2, '63, gallant and meritorious services in the Getttysburg campaign.

Honorably mentioned—(Original commission) for distinguished services in the Mexican War; General Hooker's report of this Peninsula campaign says of Colonel Starr while in command of the brigade: "His energy and courage were conspicuous in every part of the field." Referring to the battle of Fairfield, Pa., July 3, '63, Colonel Harper, late Grand Commander G. A. R. Department of Pennsylvania, in an address delivered at Allentown, spoke of it as follows: "Comrades, they hold up to our view as a hero the leader of that desperate charge, but they neglect to give credit to those loyal and brave men who not only resisted, but repulsed that terrible onslaught. But what appears to me worse than all is the fact that they failed to even mention the greatest act of heroism and bravery in the history of the Civil War, namely, the struggle that occurred in that little hamlet, Fairfield, Pa., where a handful of our cavalry, under the leadership of Major S. H. Starr, attacked two brigades of cavalry and a battery of artillery, Confederate troops, and for several hours successfully withstood and repulsed charge after charge until reinforcements came to their rescue, although nine-tenths of them were killed, wounded or taken prisoners. This heroic act on their part completed the success of our arms, and drove the enemy in dismay from Pennsylvania soil, and to them belongs an equal share of honor." The order given by Major Starr on that memorable occasion was in these words. "By Fours, Forward March, Trot, Gallop, Charge," and these are watchwords of the survivors of the United States Sixth Cavalry, at their annual reunions. Service—Stationed at Fort Moultrie, from '34 to '37; served in the campaign against the Creek and Seminole Indians in Alabama and Florida. In the latter year he retired from the service; but upon the declaration of war with Mexico, re-entered the army as a Sergeant in the Corps of United States Engineers, and participated in all of the principal battles, and continued in Mexico until the conclusion of peace in '48, having been engaged in seventeen pitched battles; served in Texas from '48 to '54, and in Kansas during the Border Ruffian troubles, in '55; in the Sioux Indian and Utah Expeditions of '55–56, and in the Western Territories until '61; in the War of the Rebellion he was assigned to the Staff of Brigadier-General J. K. F. Mansfield as A. D. C., and in May, '61, was appointed Provost Marshal of the City of Washington, D. C.; subsequently was ordered on mustering duty to St. Johnsbury, Vermont, and Philadelphia, Pa.; in Dec., '61, four New Jersey regiments were ordered to report to General Hooker, near Budd's Ferry, Md., and, being formed into a brigade as a part of the Army of the Potomac, Colonel Starr, the senior officer, was appointed to its command; continued in command of the brigade, devoting his energies to its drill and discipline during the winter and spring of '61–62, and also during the movement of the army down the Potomac to Fortress Monroe, and its advance up the Peninsula; and at the Siege of Yorktown, until May, '62; here, at the close of the siege, he was relieved of the command of the brigade, which was of his creation, and resumed com. of his regiment; was assigned as Chief Must. and Dis. Officer for the State of Ohio, from Oct., '63, to Sept., '64, when he was ordered to join Sheridan's Army in the Shenandoah Valley, Va; he com. Remount Camp, Pleasant Valley, Md., in Nov., '64, and was Special Inspector of Cavalry for the Armies of the Potomac and the James from Nov., '64, to Aug., '65; in Oct., '65, he was ordered with his regiment to Texas, and placed in command of Austin; later, he was appointed to the command of the post at Tyler, Smith County. While in Texas he served on two military commissions, one held at Houston, and the other at Jefferson, being President of one. Battles, skirmishes, etc.—He was engaged in the siege of Vera Cruz, the battles of Cerro Gordo, Contreras and Cherubusco, and led the forlorn hope at the storming and capture of Molino del Rey; he took part in the capture of the Castle of Chapultepec and of the City of Mexico. On May 4, '62, he was engaged at the battle of Williamsburg, where his regiment lost heavily and he was wounded; he was again placed in command of the brigade, and was engaged at the battle of Fair Oaks, May 31, and at Seven Pines, June 1; again resuming command of his regiment, he was engaged with it at the battles of White Oak Swamp, Chickahominy, Seven Days' Battles and Malvern Hill, during the retreat of the Army of the Potomac to Harrison's Landing, in '62; the command of the brigade of Regular Cavalry devolved on him June 13, and in the action of Upperville, Va., June 21, he was wounded in the side by a sabre thrust received during a charge on the rebel cavalry; during Lee's march for the invasion of Maryland and Pennsylvania, hung on the flank of the Confederate army with his cavalry, skirmishing frequently with the enemy until they crossed the Potomac into Maryland, and on the 3d of July, at Fairfield, Pa., with the 6th U. S. Cav., reduced by casualties to less than three hundred men, he engaged two brigades of the enemy's cavalry, checked their advance, and, after a severe engagement in which the regiment lost heavily, frustrated the object of the Confederates to make a flank attack upon a Union brigade. Col. Starr was severely wounded in this action, receiving a sabre stroke on the head and a pistol ball through the right arm, which shattered the bone and rendered amputation necessary; this was performed four inches below the shoulder-joint, July 4th; he was taken prisoner after the action, while lying wounded at the house of Mrs. Blythe, in Fairfield, but was immediately released. Staff positions occupied—A. A. Russell, Wyo.; joined Major Thornburgh's command, which was organized in Sept. to operate against the disaffected Utes on White River, Col.; but before the command marched from Fort Fred Steele, Wyo., he was recalled by the Lieutenant-General of the Army for special duty at Chicago, Ill., as recorder of a board of officers which was convened to consider disputed matters relating to the battles of Chickamauga and Stone River; before completing this duty, and in Jan., '80, was again appointed an aide-de-camp for Brigadier-General Pope, and served in that position at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., until June 6, '81, when he was appointed an aide-de-camp (with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel) for the Lieutenant-General of the army, serving till March, '85; and at various other stations till '90, present station being Los Angeles, Cal. Battles, skirmishes, etc.—Engaged in May, '69, in the combats with hostile Sioux and Cheyennes at Beaver and Spring Creeks, and narrowly escaped death in the combat at the latter place; engaged in the affair at Rock Creek, the action at Summit Springs, the affair in the sand-hills south of Julesburg, the Niobrara pursuit and the affair on Prairie Dog Creek. History—Upon the recommendations of his captain and colonel, for gallant conduct in battle during the Gettysburg campaign, and of the faculty of the high school of Philadelphia, from which institution he held the degrees of B. A. and M. A., he was appointed a cadet at the Military Academy.

Vollum, Edward P. Born in New York, Sept. 11, 1827. Commissioned Asst. Surgeon May 31, '53. July, '53, assigned as Post Surgeon at Fort Belknap; '53–4–5, was medical attendant to three tribes of Comanches under Chiefs Katimissi, Buffalo Hump and Sonacho, without pay, at the request of the Indian Dept., as a pacific measure. During the autumn of '53, in the absence of any medical attendant at Fort Phantom Hill, 75 miles from his own station, he attended that Post also. The entire 5th Infantry occupied these two Posts. During his trips between them, he was overtaken by the hostile Comanches twice, and released after having been held and robbed, on the discovery that he was a medical man; July 1, '65, arrived in New York on leave, and was at once ordered to Ft. Hamilton, N. Y. H., to attend in the yellow fever epidemic there. The Post Surg. was sick, and the civil physicians thereabouts having died or disappeared, the Post and neighboring settlements fell to his care; the epidemic partly subsiding at Fort Hamilton, he followed it to Governor's Island, and there remained till it disappeared; his Honor Geo. Hall, Mayor of Brooklyn, and others appealed unavailingly to Gen. Winfield Scott for his retention at Fort Hamilton till the epidemic ceased in that neighborhood; September 1, '56, ordered to the Pacific Coast via Panama; assigned to Fort Umpqua as Post Surgeon; en route thither was shipwrecked and rescued by the Coast Indians; Aug. 15, '66, ordered to Fort Crook, Cal., as Post Surg.; Oct. 26, '61, ordered to accompany detachments of 1st Dragoons, 4th and 6th Inf. from San Pedro, Cal., to New York, via Panama; Jan. 1, '62, at the request of Hon. Jonas Nesmith, of the Mil. Committee of the Senate, Dr. Vollum wrote an account of the Relative Rank of Officers in the European Armies, with suggestions for the partial adoption of that system in the Army of the United States; Feb. 14, '62, ordered to report to the Surgeon General and was employed in providing accommodations for the sick and wounded sent to Washington from the Army of the Potomac; Feb. 19, '62, assigned as Attending Surg. at Washington, D. C., for regulars and volunteers; while so employed he opened and equipped "The Convalescent Hospital," "Judiciary Square Hospital," "Mount Pleasant General Hospital," "Carver General Hospital," supplied them with physicians, cooks and nurses; also intercurrently he inspected the troops and camps in the Military District of Columbia; April 16, '62, was relieved as Attg Surg. at Washington, D. C., and continued in charge of the General Hospitals he had opened, also of the transportation to them of the sick and wounded from the Army of the Potomac; Jan. 2, '62, he took possession of the Naval Academy and converted it into an Army General Hospital; June 17, '62, ordered to Fortress Monroe, Yorktown and White House Landing, Va., to organize a more efficient system of transportation of the sick and wounded from the Army of the Potomac; to assume control of all the vessels which had been turned over to the Sanitary Commission, Christian Commission, State Agents, etc., in this connection, and to fit them up as a fleet of floating hospitals; to take along a sufficient number of medical officers, cooks, nurses, and medical supplies, with authority to employ civil physicians as needed; June 11, '62. commissioned Medical Inspector with the rank of Lieut.-Col. U. S. A.; July 23, '62, ordered to make a minute inspection of the hospitals and stations of Maj.-Gen. Pope's army; to examine into the number and efficiency of the medical officers, stewards, attendants and everything connected with its sanitary condition; Aug. 11, '62, ordered to Culpepper, Va., with "competent discretion" to take immediate steps to promote the efficient administration of medical aid to the sick and wounded at that point and in the Army of Virginia; Aug. 23, '62, ordered to report to Maj.-Gen. Pope and to confer with his Medical Director, in view of the impending battle, and to perform such professional service as might be most expedient; he remained with the Army of Va. throughout its campaign of second battle of Bull Run, up to its falling back upon the defenses of Washington, established field hospitals, took charge of the transportation of the wounded, and directed surgical operations; after the Second Battle of Bull Run he remained at Centreville with the sick and wounded, and gathered up some thirty medical officers to help care for them and fell into the hands of the enemy; under the direction of Medical Inspector Coolidge, he utilized the buildings and organized thirteen hospitals for the wounded of both armies, and he induced Col. S. Flournoy, 6th Virginia Cavalry., C. S. A., who commanded the place, to return to him the captured hospital supplies, to be used for the wounded of both sides; Sept. 15, '62, ordered to inquire into the sanitary condition of Maj.-Gen. McClellan's army, the efficiency of the medical officers, the causes of disease and discomforts among the troops, the number killed, wounded and losses from discharges, desertions and deaths, the prevailing nationality, physical and moral condition, and all circumstances of value for use in the sanitary and medical statistics; Sep. 18, '62, ordered to the field of Antietam with a R. R. train of hospital supplies and a corps of volunteer civil physicians; Monocacy Bridge was down, the train was detained there; he returned to Washington, arrived at midnight; he fitted out a train of miscellaneous vehicles procured by the Sanitary Com., filled it with hospital supplies, regular and irregular, and by daylight on the following day he took a short cut to Antietam, where he arrived the following day, and distributed his supplies to all the field hospitals, where they were sorely needed. He remained among the field hospitals directing the labors of the volunteer physicians and operating himself until the stress was over; Jan. 30, '63, assigned as Medical Inspector of the Army of the Potomac; July 7, '63, ordered to Gettysburg in connection with the care of the wounded on the field of battle and their transportation to general hospitals; he assumed entire charge of their distribution to Baltimore, York, Pa., Harrisburg and New York; in connection with the Sanitary Commission he established a reception camp at the R. R. depot for sorting, feeding and dressing the wounded before transferring them to the cars; finding that anodynes were exhausted in the field hospitals, he seized a lot from the druggists in Gettysburg that had been hidden away to keep them from the enemy; Oct. 1, '63, ordered to report to Major General Rosencrans as Medical Inspector of the Department of the Cumberland; on his arrival he reported to Major General Thomas; Nov. 21, '63, ordered to report to Major General Grant at Nashville, to assignment to duty; during the period when preparations were on foot for attacking the enemy on Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge, he advised a clearing of the hospitals in Chattanooga, to provide needed space for the wounded of the impending battle, and he planned a special medical train to convey the wounded to Nashville; these plans were approved by Major General Grant, and his Chief Quartermaster, Col. McKay, was ordered to carry them out; he was present at the battles of Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge and assisted the Medical Director in his duties on the field, and aided the surgeons professionally; April 14, '64, ordered to take station at Helena, Ark., and to inspect the Department of Arkansas; May 7, '64, ordered to add the Department of the Gulf to his sphere of inspections in the Department of Arkansas; May 21, '64, ordered to establish his headquarters at Natchez, Miss., and July 11 they were transferred to New Orleans; July 14, '64, ordered to take general supervision and direction of the Medical Department of the Military Division of West Mississippi and the Posts on the east bank of the Mississippi River, under the designation of Chief Medical Officer and Medical Inspector; this charge embraced all the camps, posts and hospitals within the States of Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana and Florida; Oct. 31, '65, honorably mustered out as Medical Inspector on the reduction of the Medical Department; Nov. 2, '65, assigned as Medical Director Department of Texas, Headquarters, Galveston; Nov. 3, '65, brevetted Lieut. Col. U. S. A.; Sep. 7, '66, ordered to New York, and Sep. 28 was assigned as Examiner of Recruits in New York and from Brooklyn; Oct. 3, '67, ordered to Madison Barracks, N. Y., as Post Surgeon; July 5, '70, ordered to Department of the Platte and assigned to Camp Douglas, Utah, as Post Surgeon; June 16, '76, ordered to report to Supt. Mounted Recruiting Service at St. Louis Barracks as Post Surgeon and Examiner of Recruits; Dec. 13, '78, he obtained leave of absence to go to Washington with the intention of establishing an Army Mutual Aid Association; Jan. 10, following, he gathered the officers stationed in Washington, to consider the subject, and, at the conclusion of his address, his plan was accepted, and on the 13th of the same month it was fully organized and launched into existence, with Col. Roger Jones, Inspector General, as President, and Major Robert N. Scott, Third Artillery, as Secretary and Treasurer; the tenth annual report, 1890, of the association showed that $283,794.02 had been distributed to the heirs of deceased officers, and that the available resources amounted to $156,399.86; he gave his plan to Dr. Thos. J. Turner, United States Navy, and from it a similar association was organized for the Navy; Jan. 1, '81, granted six months' leave to go beyond the sea for the relief of septic inoculation he received from a surgical operation he performed in Utah in '76; Jan. 30, '83, commissioned Surgeon with the rank of Lieut. Col. U. S. A, 1st R. I. Lt. Art., a regiment of soldiers was ordered up to support battery; the officers had left it, and he took command and marched the regiment into the fight; President Lincoln was informed by some one of his action, and appointed him 1st Lieut. 17th Inf.; took part in the battle of Gettysburg, and on the second day of the fight lost a leg. Remained fourteen hours before surgical attention was received; the amputation was accomplished under fire; subsequent examination showed it to have been most unskillfully done, and led to the conclusion that the saw had been withdrawn before going through, and that the unsawed portion of the bone had been broken off. He was borne away, and remained twenty-four hours without shelter and exposed to the beating of a violent storm. During this time the insufficient dressing came off wounded limb, the flesh flaps were unloosed, and a brother who came to his relief found it infected with vermin. Five months after this he was compelled to submit to an operation for necrosis. This left him with a conical stump; to remove this and thereby be able to wear an artificial limb, another and the third amputation was made on the sixth day of Feb., A.D. '64.

Wheeler, George M. (Captain U. S. A.). Born in Mass. Oct. 9, 1842. Retired; appointed from Colorado. Cadet at U. S. Military Academy July 1, '62; graduated June 18, '66. Actual rank—2d Lieut. Eng. June 18, '66; 1st Lieut. March 7, '67; Captain March 4, '79; retired June 15, '88, disability in line of duty. Service—Assigned to duty upon military contour survey of Point Lobos, Cal., preliminary to the fortification of the outer lines of defense of San Francisco Harbor; finishing the same, in charge of the field work in March, '67; assistant upon construction of especially massive sea wall and other works of defense at Fort Point, Cal., until Aug., '68 (construction of sea wall, preparation of approaches to works of defense, repairs of existing works, protection of sea wall in front of the fort at Fort Point, construction of roads, etc.), and in temporary charge for one year Sept., '68; engaged upon surveys of military reservations; collating data relative to Government title to same for the entire Pacific coast as Chief Engineer; commander of military expedition for reconnoissance in Southeastern Nevada in '69 (of which a report, with detailed topographical map, was submitted to the general commanding and published); transferred to Washington, D. C. (Feb., '71), to perfect projects for explorations and surveys in Western interior; from '72 in charge of military and geographical surveys of the territory of the United States west of the 100th meridian (area 1,443,360 square miles), organized by him under the Engineer Department and commanding the yearly expedition therefor; appointed commissioner of the U. S. and delegate of the War Dept. to 3d Int. Geog. Congress and Exhibition at Venice, Italy, in '81, submitting thereupon a detailed report, embracing also data concerning the origin, organization, administration, functions, history, progress and cost of all the Government land and marine surveys of the world, which was published as an Eng. document in quarto, illustrated; field work of U. S. Geographical Surveys terminated June 30, '79, and the office in Washington closed Feb. 29, '84; engaged in the completion of Geographical Survey publications to the end of Dec., '89 (completing vol. i. Geographical Report). It became his painful duty to request a Retiring Board because of hardships and exposures in vast regions of mountain and desert, valley and plain, traversed usually without trails even, and without water or requisite supplies, where the physical obstacles were a bar to ordinary travel. Retired from active service on June 15, '88. Staff positions occupied—In Sept., '68, on the Staff of Brig. and Bvt. Maj. Gen. E. O. C. Ord. comdg. Genl. Dept. of California. Commands held—Com. of Military Expedition in Southeastern Nev. in '69; Com. of expedition for explorations and surveys in Nevada and Arizona in '71. History—Early education obtained at common schools, the academies at Hopkinton and Grafton, Mass., and private schools. The principal volumes written, revised and edited are eight large quartos, as follows: Vol. i. Geographical Report; vol. ii. Astronomy and Barometric Hypsometry; vol. iii. Geology—Supplement, Geology; vol. iv. Paleontology; vol. v. Zoology; vol. vi. Botany; vol. vii, Archæology. The area surveyed, topographically, was 359,065 sq. ms., of which 326,891 sq. ms. has been published cartographically in 164 maps, that have been continuously used by the Government and all the principal map publishers of the world, together with 41 separately published reports (4to and 8vo) that have been distributed through the Government and are found in all the principal libraries in every country, as well as in private hands. This survey, although organized primarily for military mapping, yet produced largely in other fields, as Geology, Mining, Paleontology, Zoology, Botany, etc. (See p. 137 et seq., vol. i.) The organization ceased to exist for want of funds; its records and results rest in the archives of the Engineer Dept., and its functions, as a whole, are not represented elsewhere in the Government. These surveys have received the approval and commendation of the highest authorities connected with the elaborate and most accurate physical surveys of Europe, including Field Marshal General the Count von Moltke. He has matured projects for the Astronomic, Geodetic, Topographic, Hypsometric and Cartographic field and office operations necessary for the complete Geographic Survey of the greatest accuracy of the whole U. S. after the most approved scientific methods, and has received diplomas as Honorary and Corresponding Member of more than forty scientific and other learned societies at home and abroad. During the expedition of '69 the plan was conceived for a connected and systematic physical survey of the whole Western Mountain Region, a project for which was authorized by Act of Congress of June 10, '72. During the progress of Geographical Surveys he introduced many new instruments and apparatus and added largely to the progress of field and office methods of extended surveying, especially in the Astronomic, Geodetic, Topographic and Hypsometric Departments. At present engaged upon the completion of a report and notes on organization and functions of General Staff and Intelligence Departments.

Afterwards he took charge of a large hospital at Hilton Head, S. C. At the same time, by request of army officers and their families residing there, he acted as chaplain at that post. On June 2, '66, he was must. out of the volunteer service and received an appointment as post chaplain at Fort Union, N. M. In the autumn of '69 he was ordered to the Dept. of Dakota, and resided at Abercrombie until the spring of the year '73, when he was ordered to Fort Snelling, Minnesota. In the autumn of that year he was ordered to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where he remained until the spring of '82. In the Dept. of the Missouri and in Dakota he was accustomed to go to different posts not provided with chaplains, and to visit extensive neighborhoods, by permission of department commanders, to render services. Upon leaving Leavenworth he had an order to report for duty to the commander of the Dept. of the Pacific, and was assigned to Angel Island, in the harbor of San Francisco; in June of that year his name was placed upon the Army Retired List by act of Congress. History—After his collegiate studies were concluded he studied law in his native city. Just before he was to be allowed to commence the practice of law he entered his name as a candidate for Holy Orders in the Protestant Episcopal Church. The desire to do so dated back to his earliest recollections. He pursued his divinity studies at the theological seminary in Virginia in order to be near a dear brother who was then residing in that State. His first parish was in Maryland, for one year. His second in New Jersey, for five years. He then removed to Boston, Mass., and was rector of Christ Church in that city for ten years. His health failed somewhat owing to extrordinary duties, and after remaiuing one year without a charge, he spent nearly two years in the care of a parish in the western part of that State. For the further benefit of his health he then went to New Orleans, and performed ministerial duties in that city and in St. Mary's Parish, on Bayou Teche, for several years, when he was invited to the rectorship of a church at Dayton, Ohio; from which city, in less than three years, he went to Philadelphia, and officiated in a large parish near that city until the second year of the late rebellion, when his great interest in the struggle then going on induced him to give most of his time to hospitals and afflicted families, unofficially, until he was applied to to go the South as a hospital chaplain.

(Copy.) HEADQUARTERS MILITARY DIVISION OF THE TENNESSEE, NASHVILLE, TENN., July 30, 1886.

Sir: I take the liberty of recommending to your favorable consideration Major General Thomas J. Wood, U. S. Volunteers, and Colonel 2d Cavalry, U. S. Army, for promotion to the grade of Brigadier General, U. S. Army. I have known General Wood for many years, during which period he has always sustained the reputation of being an efficient and zealous officer. Since the fall of 1863 General Wood has been under my command. He commanded during the Atlanta campaign, and at the battle of Franklin, Tenn., November 11, 1864, with decided ability. After the concentration of the United States forces at Nashville, December 2, 1864, General Wood (though wounded Sept. 2, 1864, at Lovejoy's Station, Georgia, in the Atlanta campaign, had never left the field) succeeded General Stanley in command of the 4th Corps; and in the operations around Nashville, and in the battle of Nashville, December 15 and 16, 1864, as also in the retreat of the enemy from Tennessee, General Wood handled his troops with marked ability. Subsequently as commander of the Department of the Mississippi, General Wood has exhibited decided administrative ability; having by his firm, but mild course succeeded in reconciling the citizens of that state to the situation to which the war reduced them; to such an extent that immigrants to the state now feel confident of being received kindly and treated with fairness and justice.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
GEO. H. THOMAS, Major General U. S. Army, Commanding.

Staff positions occupied—Adjt. 2d Drag. Sept. 23, '49, to July 1, '54. Service—Ordered to report for duty to Genl. Zachary Taylor, in command of "The Army of Occupation," headquarters at Corpus Christi, Texas. After a dreary winter, '45–46, passed under canvas at Corpus Christi, in March, '46, the Army of Occupation marched to the Rio Grande, which brought on war with Mexico. On May 8, '46, was fought the battle of Palo Alto, and on the following day the battle of Resaca was fought, in both of which the American Army was victorious. After the battles of the 8th and 9th May, '46, followed the crossing of the Rio Grande and the occupation of Matamoras. Then, during the summer, the ascent of the Rio Grande to Camargo, preparatory to invading Mexico and capturing Monterey. In Sept., '46, the army advanced to Monterey; on the march made most of the reconnoissances in advance of the army to determine the line of march; Sept. 21 to 23, '46, the operations for the capture of Monterey were begun and carried so far toward success that Genl. Ampudia proposed to surrender the city and have his army paroled as prisoners of war. Genl. Taylor accepted the terms, the Mexican Army evacuated the town, and the American Army occupied it. At this period, having been in active service more than a year as a staff-officer, and finding that no staff-officers resigned, and few were killed, thus leaving no room for promotion, he applied to the President to be transferred to the Cavalry arm of the service, as giving him more opportunity for participation in actual conflict. His application was granted, and he was transferred to the 2d Regiment of Dragoons, then on duty with the Army of Occupation. July 22 and 23, '47, was fought the great battle of Buena Vista, in which 4500 American soldiers, under Genl. Taylor, defeated and routed more than 20,000 Mexican troops under General Santa Anna, the facile princeps of the Mexican Army. "Grim-visaged war doth occasionally smooth his wrinkled front." A pleasant instance of this occurred on May 8, '47 (being the first anniversary of the battle of Palo Alto), as the following invitation shows:

"General Taylor requests the pleasure of Lieut. Wood's company at dinner to-morrow, May 8, to meet others who were at the battle of Palo Alto."

HEADQUARTERS May 7, 1847.

At this dinner-party were assembled officers who had already achieved national reputation (one afterward was President of the United States, Genl. Taylor) and others subsequently won national renown. Alas! this was 40 years ago, and of all who were at that dinner T. J. Wood only remains. After the cessation of active operations, in the autumn of '47, on Genl. Taylor's line, he applied to be transferred to the army under Genl. Scott in the city of Mexico. The application was granted; joined the army in the "city of the Montezumas," and remained with it till Mexico was evacuated, in the summer of '48, by the American troops. In the autumn of '48 he accompanied his regiment to the Indian frontier of Tex. He was engaged on frontier service from the autumn of '48 to the autumn of '59. During this interim he was transferred from his old regiment, the 2d Dragoons, to a captaincy in the 1st Cavalry, a new regiment added to the army in '55; on leave in Europe from early in '60 to March 31, '61; visited every capital in Europe but Madrid and Lisbon, and had traveled in Western Asia and Northern Africa; proceeding at once to Washington, he reported to the War Department for duty; was ordered to Indiana to muster into service the quota of that State; he remained in Indiana on mustering duty from April, '61, to October, '61, and in the interval organized, equipped, mustered into service and sent into the field 40,000 volunteers. In October, '61, he was appointed Brigadier-General U. S. Vol. and ordered to report to Genl. W. T. Sherman, then in command of the National forces in Kentucky. Proceeding at once to Louisville, he reported to Genl. Sherman, and was assigned to the command of a brigade with the advance of the army, then fifty miles south of Louisville. This command he exercised but a few weeks, when a new division was organized, and he was assigned to the command of it. In the meantime Genl. Buell had relieved Gen. Sherman in command of the troops in Kentucky. The first work before the National troops in Kentucky was the expulsion of the rebel troops from that State. The victory of Mill Springs in Southeastern Kentucky (the National troops being commanded by Genl. Thomas) and the fall of Forts Henry and Donelson, compelled the rebels not only to evacuate Kentucky, but to abandon Nashville, Tennessee. As rapidly as possible the divisions of Genl. Buell were concentrated at Nashville; and as soon as the necessary preparations could be made the march was commenced to form a junction in the vicinity of Savannah, on the Tennessee River, with the Army of the Tennessee, commanded by Genl. Grant. Sunday morning, April 6, '62, as Wood's division was pursuing its march, the booming of cannon from the southwest brought tidings of the progress of battle. The march-step was quickened. At 11 o'clock A.M. an order was received to cut loose from the baggage-train and to press forward, by forced march, to the Tennessee River—the assistance of the division being needed. This was at once done, and through the Sunday afternoon the foot-sore troops pressed on. About nightfall the rain began to fall in torrents, but the troops were to know no rest. The roar of artillery told that the battle was still on. All night long—through darkness, rain and mud, wading streams swollen by the rain—the division pressed forward and reached the Tennessee River shortly after daylight the morning of the 7th. The division had marched 24 hours without food or rest, and had accomplished more than 30 miles. As rapidly as steamboats could be obtained, after the arrival of the division at Savannah, the troops were embarked and hurried forward to Pittsburgh Landing. The bulk of the division reached the battle-field between 12 M. and 1 P.M. April 7; and though the tide of battle had, by this time, been turned in favor of the National arms, the division, after its wearisome night march, had the proud satisfaction of joining in the pursuit of the enemy, and the night of the 7th bivouacked farther to the front than any other of the National troops. Wood's division participated in the campaign (April and May, '62) which resulted in the capture of Corinth, Miss.; during June and July, '62, the division was employed in repairing the Charleston and Memphis Railroad from Corinth, eastward, to Decatur, Ala. During Aug., '62, the division was engaged in repairing and guarding the railroads in Middle Tennessee and watching the expected invasion of that State by Bragg. Early in Sept., '62, it became evident Bragg was moving into Kentucky. Wood's division, with the remainder of the army, joined in the race to get between Bragg's army and the Ohio River. The National movement was successful; and during the month of Oct., '62, Bragg was expelled from Kentucky. Oct. 8, '62, occurred the battle of Perryville, in which Wood's division participated. In November, '62, the divisions of what was then christened "the Army of the Cumberland" were concentrated at Nashville, and Genl. Rosecrans placed in command. Dec. 26, '62, the advance from Nashville to Murfreesboro' was begun, and on the 30th of Dec. the two armies confronted each other at Stone River; and on the Dec. 31, '62, the battle of Stone River was fought; Wood's division held the extreme left of the National army. Wood's division joined in the campaign of the summer of '63, which expelled Bragg's army from Tennessee. The division crossed the Tennessee River with the rest of the Army of the Cumberland early in Sept., '63, and on Sept. 9th the division was the first body of National troops to occupy Chattanooga. Sept. 19 and 20, '63, was fought the bloody battle of Chickamauga. Wood's division participated in the conflict on both days, and remained on the battle-field till after night-fall of the 25th, when it fell back, with the remainder of the army, by order, toward Chattanooga. Genl. Wood's horse was killed under him on the 19th, and he was struck several times and severely contused on the 20th. During October and November, '63, Wood's division was in Chattanooga. Nov. 23d it opened the ball which terminated in routing Bragg's Army, and compelling the abandonment of the effort to recapture Chattanooga. On the 25th of November the division participated in the grand final and successful assault of Missionary Ridge, and was the first body of troops to gain the crest. The winter of '63–64 Wood's division was on duty in East Tennessee. May 3, '64, the Atlanta campaign was opened, and closed Sept. 2, '64, with the capture of Atlanta. Wood's division participated in all the important battles, actions and conflicts of that most brilliant campaign. In the last action of the campaign, on the 2d of Sept., '64, at Lovejoy's Station, south of Atlanta, Genl. Wood was severely wounded, but never left the field, remaining with his command to the close of the war. Wood's division took part in the battle of Franklin, Tenn., Nov. 30, '64. Genl. Stanley, who commanded the 4th Corps in the battle of Franklin, was wounded in the battle. Genl. Wood succeeded to the command of the 4th Corps, which he commanded in the battle of Nashville, Dec. 15 and 16, '64, and in the pursuit of the retreating rebels to the Tennessee River, more than 120 miles from Nashville. In the summer of '65, after the cessation of hostilities, Genl. Wood was ordered to Little Rock, Ark.; but he remained there but a short time, being transferred, on the application of Genl. Thomas, then commanding "the Military Division of the South," to the command of the Department of Mississippi, headquarters at Vicksburg. He retained this command from autumn of '65 to Jan., '67, when he was ordered to duty on the Indian frontier. In the winter of '66–67, while Gen. Wood was on duty on the Indian frontier of the Northwest, finding the infirmity, arising from the wounds and injuries he had received during the war, was increasing and rendering him unfit for active field duty, he applied to be retired from active duty; June 9, '68, he was placed on the "Retired List" with the rank of Major General. General Wood is a member of "The Military Service Institution of the United States;" a member of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland; a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, and a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. History—The subject of these notes was born September 25, '23, in Mumfordville, Hart County, Kentucky; his ancestors, for nearly two centuries, through colonial times, resided in Virginia and migrated to Kentucky near the close of the 18th century, when the region in which they settled was a wilderness, infested by Indians, rendering it necessary for the pioneers "to fort." He was at the Academy with many cadets, who subsequently, as officers, achieved great distinction in the Mexican War and more especially in the war for the suppression of "The Great Rebellion." First among these must always be named Gen. Grant; he and T. J. Wood during one term occupied a room together; then was commenced an acquaintance and friendship which remained unbroken till the great soldier and ex-President departed this life. McClellan, Hancock, Stone, Gordon, Granger, W. F. Smith and others who distinguished themselves in the National Armies were also at the Academy with T. J. Wood. Also, Longstreet, "Stonewall Jackson," D. H. Hill, A. P. Hill, Heth, Pickett and others, all of whom, as Confederate generals, displayed military capacity of a high order.

Headquarters Fort Wingate, Column in the field near Farmington, N. M., February 1, 1880.

To the Commanding Officer 19th Infantry, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Sir: In breaking up the New Mexico Column which was completed yesterday, it gives me pleasure to state, through you as Regimental Commander, that the soldierly qualities displayed by the mounted company "G" of your regiment, lately serving in this vicinity under my command, in the performance of duty and in enduring severity of the climate pending arrival of winter equipment, were very commendable. I regard Captain J. H. Bradford, 19th Infantry, one of the best soldiers I have ever commanded.

Very respectfully your obedient servant,

(Signed) Geo. P. Buell, Colonel 15th Infantry Commanding.

Headquarters 19th Infantry, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., February 20th, 1880.

Official copy respectfully furnished Capt. J. H. Bradford, 19th Infantry, commanding Company "G," for his information. The Regimental Commander takes pleasure in transmitting a copy of this letter and feels great satisfaction at this report, but recognizes it only as a renewed evidence of Captain Bradford's well established military acquirements, ability and character. By order Col. C. H. Smith.

Headquarters, Fort Wingate, N. M., June 7th, 1880.

General Order No. 12.

I. The battalion from Fort Lewis, Colo., B, D, I & K, 15th Inf., and G, 19th Inf. mounted, having completed the march to this post to-day, the Colonel commanding takes pleasure in announcing his appreciation of their qualities as soldiers in camp and on the march in the face of heavy sand storms over roads necessitating dry camps and long marches. Though delayed more than a day in the work of constructing a ferry over the San Juan River, which was swollen by the Spring floods, the Infantry has covered 230 miles in 120 marching hours, and the mounted company the same distance in 96 marching hours and have won praises from all for the energy and endurance displayed, knowing that your presence was needed to frustrate the hostile intentions of the most powerful Indian tribe of our frontier. The celerity manifested by the mounted company in pushing forward over a rough trail a distance of 110 miles in two days and a quarter was noted, and the Colonel is pleased to again extend them his thanks, as also to the Officers and men of the battalion 15th Infantry, and believe a record has been made of which all may be justly proud.

By order of Colonel Buell.

"The Worst Complexion is improved by the daily use of Pears' Soap."

Pears'

Transparent

SOAP

Produces Soft, White, and Beautiful Hands; keeps the Skin Soft as Velvet, and free from Redness and Roughness.

PEARS' SOAP has received 19 International Awards.

It can be had of nearly all Druggists in the United States, BUT BE SURE YOU GET THE GENUINE, as there are worthless imitations.

THE GREAT DAILY OF THE KEYSTONE STATE.

Issued every day, including Sunday, it forms an uninterrupted and unrivaled channel of communication, with a constituency of readers which is not excelled in any quarter in number, intelligence, or amplitude of means.

In addition to exceptionally full reports of occurrences, —local, domestic, and foreign,—the "RECORD" gives special prominence to military, scientific, sporting, and dramatic notes and events, household knowledge, fashions, etc.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, INCLUDING SUNDAY, $4.00 PER YEAR.

Offices of the Army and Navy, and enlisted men in either branch of the service, may obtain specimen copies free by sending a postal card request, being careful to give their address in full.

The circulation of the "RECORD," 120,000 daily and 80,000 Sunday, shows the estimation in which it is held at home. Address

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

OF PHILADELPHIA.

It has not a single disputed death claim on its books.

Its investments are safe; its management is conservatively progressive —fully abreast of the times, never unwisely in advance.

It has all the safeguards which experience, intelligence, and caution suggest, and is unsurpassed in the guarantees which it affords.

It has never treated a member other than with fairness and liberality. In this fact lies the guarantee of future just management.

Its record is unassailable. Not one of its acts ever called for an apology or explanation.

Its policy-holders participate in the annual distribution of surplus upon the SECOND and succeeding payments, and its policies are non-forfeitable after TWO years.

Its premium rates are those in use by all good mutual companies, and, being diminished by annual distributions of surplus the cost of insurance is lower than elsewhere.

The company contracts to extend the time of payment beyond the date named in the policy. This is not a matter of grace, but of right. Its extension system is the best devised, and most beneficial in its operations.

There is no stronger company in the country, few so strong. The relation of assets to liabilities shows this; but there are other elements of strength in intelligence, capacity, and integrity of management, and prolonged experience.

EDWARD M. NEEDLES, President.
H. S. STEPHENS, Vice-President.
HENRY C. BROWN, Secretary and Treasurer.
JESSE J. BARKER, Actuary.
